Pearson Lauds Truman's Lead

OTTAWA (BUP) — External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson today endorsed President Truman's policy of armed assistance to South Korea.

In a statement to the House of Commons, Pearson described the United States' moves in the Korean crisis as "action of high courage and fine statesmanship."

Nationalists Cease Attacks On China Reds

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — China's Nationalists, assured that the United States 7th Fleet will protect Formosa, today ordered their planes and warships to halt attacks on the Communist mainland.

Thus an uneasy truce prevails in the civil war. The Communists are free to violate it, but only at the risk of a clash with the warships, jet fighters and bombers of the U.S. 7th Fleet.

The cease fire in no way affects the Nationalist guerrillas on the mainland. They have been reported increasingly active in the south and east. For the time being they carry the burden of the struggle.

It was emphasized that the cease fire is a temporary measure. The Nationalists do not consider that it ties their hands permanently.

The news of President Truman's move was received joyously on Formosa and several newspapers issued one-page extras. Formosa has been steeling itself for an expected Red invasion across the 100-mile-wide waters on Formosa Strait.

FEAR SOVIETS TO QUIT U.N. JOIN BATTLE

Action Expected To Be Russian Answer

LAKE SUCCESS (UP) — United Nations diplomats feared today Russia may send fighting aid to North Korean Communists and withdraw from the United Nations.

That will be Russia's retaliation to back its charge that the U.S. is guilty of aggression and its blunt answer to military sanctions voted against the Northern Koreans Tuesday night by the Security Council, various delegations believed.

Few delegations felt the Soviets would go as far as declaring war.

To file formal aggressor charges against the United States in the world organization, Russia would have to end its six-month boycott of the Security Council.

SEVEN TO ONE

But the council already has sided with the United States by voting 7 to 1 to take military sanctions for the first time in U.N. history. And there already were indications that Great Britain, France and Australia may soon have air and naval units fighting beside those of the United States.

It was reliably reported that those three powers had taken such action under serious consideration. Developments might be forthcoming later today when the U.N.'s military staff committee holds a closed meeting in Manhattan.

The vote which invited other countries to join the U.S. in shooting aid to South Korea came at 10:46 p.m. E.D.T. Tuesday after a five-hour delay to permit India and Egypt to get instructions from their governments.

In the end, however, those two countries reserved their position as the council approved a U.S. resolution inviting all U.N. members to "furnish such assistance to the Republic of Korea as may be necessary to repel the armed attack" of the Northern Korean Army.

ONE OPPOSED

The lone opposition vote was cast by Yugoslavia. India and Egypt asked that it be noted specifically that they had neither voted for or against the resolution, nor had they abstained.

QUICK PRECAUTIONARY ACTION

Orders-In-Council Ready For Signing If Canada Needs Defence

By NORMAN M. MACLEOD
OTTAWA (BUP) — A high government source revealed today that all orders-in-council to prepare Canada for war had been drafted and could be passed by the cabinet in an hour.

The source emphasized, however, that the step was wholly precautionary and did not imply any government belief that the Korean civil war was likely to fan out into a shooting war involving Canada.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told Opposition party leaders privately Tuesday night that there was no reason why the Korean war should spread. Cabinet opinion leaned to fighting would continue to be localized, the source said.

Should this hope fail, however, Canada would not be caught unprepared. Blueprints for placing the nation on a full war basis were in readiness for instant use if and when needed.

Here is the picture of what would take place in Canada in the event of a sudden crisis of war, as the high source gave it to the British United Press:

Within one hour, the cabinet would have passed all orders-in-council instituting controls and regulations necessary to place Canadian industry upon a full war basis, with sweeping requisitioning powers vested in the Minister of National Defence and the Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Canada would probably not attempt the production of tanks in another world war, but production of anti-tank weapons would be one of her specialties.

Congress Backs Truman Action

WASHINGTON (UP) — An almost united Congress stood ready today to back American intervention in the Korean war with extension of the draft and increased arms spending both at home and abroad.

Congressional leaders said events of the next few days and weeks would determine whether the United States is to be fully geared for war.

President Truman's decision to use U.S. planes and ships in the defence of South Korea drew almost unanimous support. A few dissenting voices said Mr. Truman exceeded his constitutional authority and by-passed Congress.

Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O.), chief G.O.P. spokesman in Congress, who months ago called for a stronger U.S. stand in the Far East, withheld specific comment on the President's decision pending a speech later today.

He said only that Congress, by approving the United Nations and the Atlantic Pact, already has "delegated too much power to the President to involve this nation in war."

DRAFT EXTENSION

Democratic leader Scott W. Lucas, Ill., urged the Senate to back up the President's decision by:

1. Completing action on a one-year extension of the draft with added authority for the President to order up the National Guard and military reserves.

2. Approving the expenditure of $1,222,500,000 more in arms aid to free nations everywhere, including at least $10,000,000 for Southern Korea.

Speeding up work on the fiscal 1951 appropriation bill which includes about $13,000,000,000 for the army, navy and air force.

The draft bill, passed overwhelmingly by the House yesterday, was scheduled for a Senate vote this afternoon.

MOSCOW SAYS U.S. ACTS AS AGGRESSOR

Claims Truman Not Stopping Half Way

LONDON (UP) — Moscow accused the United States today of "direct acts of aggression" against Communist North Korea and Communist China.

First Soviet reaction to President Truman's announcement that the United States is intervening with air and naval forces to protect Formosa and South Korea came from Radio Moscow at 7:30 a.m.

The broadcast quoted the official Moscow newspaper Pravda as saying:

"President Truman's order signifies the U.S. government has taken direct acts of aggression against the (North) Korean People's Republic and against the People's Republic of China."

"Events in Korea which have occupied the centre of attention of world public opinion reveal with all clarity that the imperialist warmongers will not stop half-way."

Pravda reiterated the Communist claim that the U.S.-supported South Korean Republic started the war in Korea by invading North Korea.

The northern government proposed, earlier this month, "the peaceful unification" of Korea, the Pravda editorial said.

"The South Korean clique of (President) Syngman Rhee answered this proposal on June 25 by beginning an internecine, fratricidal war," Pravda said.

"The Syngman Rhee clique has taken the path of military adventure. It relied in advance on military aid from its overseas masters."

250 Discharged

DURBAN, South Africa (Reuter) — About 200 Indians and 50 Africans were fired by a Durban firm Tuesday for staying away from work in "day-of-protest" demonstrations against the treatment of non-whites in South Africa. No action was taken against Durban municipal workers who stayed away from work in large numbers.

Armored Car, Weapon

CAIRO (Reuter) — Trooper Charles C. Van Rooven, Belgian Congo native in the British army, was charged Tuesday with having crashed a five-ton armored vehicle into a laundryman's hut, killing one worker, because his shirt was not ready in time for his guard duty.

Urge No Interference In Private Pension Schemes

OTTAWA (CP) — The parliamentary committee on old-age security, placing new pension proposals before the Commons, suggested today that any plan considered should not interfere with employee pension plans, purchase of government or private annuities or with private savings.

The committee recommended that any scheme conceived under public auspices should be "such as to place a floor under these private or collective provisions for retirement security."

"This would make possible," it said, "the development under private initiative of supplementary programs which, taken to-

Southern Defeat Laid To Fear Of Tanks, Guns

TOKYO (UP) — Soviet-backed North Korean forces captured Seoul, capital of South Korea, today and smashed on within 10 miles of U.S. military headquarters at Suwon in pursuit of broken Southern forces.

The Northern forces already were 10 miles beyond Seoul and 53 miles inside South Korea with seemingly little prospect of meeting any ground resistance short of the Im River, another 60 miles to the south.

Front reports said broken elements of the 7th and 2nd Divisions, defenders of Seoul, were fleeing south in hopeless confusion, all their heavy American equipment lost.

The U.S. Air Force smashed at the North Koreans' Russian-made tanks with bombs, rockets and bullets in an all-out effort to stem the advance.

F-80 Shooting Star jet fighters and A-26 attack bombers were taking off in relays from Southern Japan to hammer the North Korean communications lines.

U.S. forces which set up headquarters at Suwon, 20 miles south of Seoul, only Tuesday expected momentarily to get orders to leave. Kimp'o Airfield, 17 miles northwest of Seoul, fell to the North Koreans during Tuesday night and Suwon is the last effective air base in South Korea.

LANDING MADE

The Seoul radio reported that North Korean troops landed at Pohang, on the southeast coast of Korea just north of the 36th parallel. It said they were advancing westward toward Taikyu (Taegu), some 40 miles inland. The city is the main transport centre of Southeast Korea.

Another Seoul broadcast said Justice Minister Soo of the North Korean Government had been appointed Mayor of Seoul.

U.S. officers blamed the South Koreans' fear of tanks and far-ranging 120-millimeter guns for their collapse.

The South Korean government, under President Syngman Rhee fled Seoul to Taejon, 85 miles to the south, just ahead of the advancing Communists.

First reports of the city's fall came from the Seoul radio, now operated by the Communist invaders, and the North Korean government radio at Pyongyang, the northern capital.

"LIBERATED"

They reported that Red troops had "liberated" government offices, the U.S. embassy, the radio station and newspapers in Seoul and completely occupied the city.

Confirmation came later from Rutherford Post, United Press staff correspondent who flew from southern Japan to Suwon with the U.S. air force.

Posts said North Korean tanks pushed into Seoul from the Uijongbu sector to the north early today and nearly-trapped 35 members of the U.S. military advisory group.

Only four of the Americans managed to get across the mile-long main bridge over the Han River south of the capital before the defenders blew it up and the only other two bridges across the broad stream.

Britain Offers Navy Ships In Orient To U.S.

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee announced Britain has decided to place its naval forces in Japanese waters at the disposal of the United States to support American action in South Korea.

His group would support any action that the present situation called for, "not by any one power but through the collective action of the United Nations, prompted by the desire for the maintenance of peace."

Mr. Pearson's statement included both President Truman's announcement of intervention and the Security Council's call for support of that action by U.N. members. The House pounded desks in applause several times, once when the minister said he was sure "all members will applaud and support this action of high courage and fine statesmanship."

He stressed that the U.S. action, although taken on its own, is in accordance both with the U.N. charter and with the U.N. resolution of Sunday, calling for withdrawal of North Korean troops.

were injured slightly when the bridge was detonated as they were attempting to cross it in a jeep.

The military advisory group and the newsmen were reported making their way to Suwon.

Two of the officers, Lieut. Gordon Mohr of Minot, N.D., and Capt. Elmer Lowery of San Diego, Calif., said they drove out of Seoul one jump ahead of a tank which fired at them for eight blocks.

"It was the worst thing I have been through," Mohr said. "The tank was firing like crazy, but we were so close to it that it couldn't hit us."

A Korean source here said the Pohang landing might be a serious development. The source said a double lane paved road ran from Pohang to Taikyu, and Communist troops might have no trouble in advancing at least that far.

New Zealand Hopes For Royal Visit Before June, 1952

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuter) — The King will probably make a visit to New Zealand before June, 1952, Governor-General Sir Bernard Freyberg indicated today.

Reading the Speech from the Throne at the ceremonial opening of the parliamentary session, the Governor-General said he had intended relinquishing his appointment after his normal five-year term which ends next May.

However, the Prime Minister had asked him to remain for a further term "during the course of which it is earnestly hoped the Royal visit will take place."

TOKYO (CP)—North Korean spearheads which captured Seoul punched a wide gap in South Korean defences running across the peninsula, military sources said today.

The breakthrough decimated or cut off in the Imjin River area at least four South Korean divisions and outflanked two strongly pressed divisions holding the line from Chungcheong, 60 miles northeast of Seoul, to the east coast.

Military sources said the rugged country in southeastern Korea may make it possible for some new defence line to be established pivoting on Chungji, 75 miles southeast of Seoul.

Sanctions Quotas

LAKE SUCCESS (UP)—The United Nations today called on its 58 members to say what help they are prepared to give in support of the security council's resolutions for military sanctions in Korea.

The next step was understood to be the drafting of another communication from Secretary-General Trygve Lie to all member nations asking specifically what they were going to contribute.

Citizens Who Lost In War May Be Paid

OTTAWA (BUP)—State Secretary Gordon Bradley said today the government would consider payment of damages to Canadians whose property was seized or destroyed by the enemy during World War II.

Bradley made the statement after E. D. Fulton (P.C.-Karl) had protested in Parliament against government delay in establishing a policy to pay the claims.

Fulton said 2,510 claims for damages totalling $65,000,000 had been filed with the Custodian of Enemy Property, and that it was "heartless" for the government to deny these people at least interim payments.

Most Canadians who have filed claims, Fulton said, lost all their possessions to the Japanese in Asiatic countries. They were in no position to start life over again, and many of them were destitute, he said.

He suggested that enemy assets totalling $51,000,000 now held by the government should be used to pay the claims.

DAMASCUS (AP)—The Syrian government announced today that 60 persons were killed and 93 badly hurt in an explosion Tuesday at a fuel depot in Homs, 100 miles north of here.

Pearson Lauds Truman's Lead In Korea Crisis

P.C.'s Pledge
Fullest Support

OTTAWA (CP and BUP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson, warmly applauded by the Commons, today vigorously supported U.S. armed intervention in Korea and said Canada will confer with her United Nations partners to see what aid she herself can offer.

Mr. Pearson's statement included both President Truman's announcement of intervention and the Security Council's call for support of that action by U.N. members. The House pounded desks in applause several times, once when the minister said he was sure "all members will applaud and support this action of high courage and firm statesmanship."

He stressed that the U.S. action, although taken on its own, is in accordance both with the U.N. charter and with the U.N. resolution of Sunday, calling for withdrawal of North Korean troops.

Gordon Graydon, deputy Opposition leader, pledged the "wholehearted support of the Opposition in any measures taken by the government for security and peace."

"When it comes to a question of such international seriousness, in the twilight between peace and war, there is no division in this House," Graydon said. "We speak as Canadians."

Congressional leaders said events of the next few days and weeks would determine whether the United States is to be fully geared for war.

Carries Out U.N. Pledge, Says Attlee

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee announced Britain has decided to place its naval forces in Japanese waters at the disposal of the United States to support American action in South Korea.

Attlee said the British naval forces were offered for immediate use. He made the announcement in the House of Commons.

"I need scarcely say that the Prime Minister speaks for all parties in the House when he makes this announcement," Winston Churchill, leader of the Conservative Opposition, said.

"We shall do our best to give him any support he needs in what seems to me an inescapable duty."

Attlee said British forces around Japan "are almost the same as those of the U.S. naval forces."

SUBSTANTIAL FORCE

The announcement came in response to Churchill's question "whether the naval forces we have on the spot are such as are necessary to make a substantial contribution, relative to American forces."

Attlee said it is "certain that this country will carry out its obligations to the United Nations."

He observed Britain is "already carrying a heavy burden in holding the line in Southeast Asia," where British troops are engaged in fighting Communist guerrillas in Malaya.

He said the British cabinet feels that Russia will not intervene to touch off a global conflict because she definitely does not want war.

Asked how Commonwealth countries were chipping in to support U.S. action against the North Koreans, Attlee said:

"We have our responsibilities under the U.N. We have taken countries are equally members of the U.N. and it is, of course, for them to decide what action they will take."

British naval forces are in Japanese waters on summer exercises. They include two cruisers, the Belfast and Jamaica, both armed with six-inch naval rifles; seven destroyers, two frigates, a minesweeper, patrol vessel and one other auxiliary ship.

Legion Hits Government Complacency

A committee of four has been struck by the executive council of the B.C. Command of the Canadian Legion in Vancouver to bring a brief on the unemployment situation in Canada to the Canadian Legion's convention in Winnipeg in September.

The federal command in Ottawa has also been instructed to delve into the situation from a federal angle. The question will be discussed at the convention.

At the meeting, the federal government was criticized for its "complacent attitude" towards the unemployment situation.

Due to the fact the employment picture was somewhat easier now that good weather is here, the Legion executive charged the government was completely neglecting the situation for when bad weather returns this winter.

According to statistics, the executive council claimed the picture was far worse now than it was a year ago.

Problem of the local district council committee was to attempt to find employment for older veterans, Legion officials here said.

Two Shipments To End D.V.A. Britain Fund

Department of Veterans' Affairs employees will end their two-and-a-half-year-old "Dimes for Britain" fund with two shipments of food parcels overseas in 1950—one to commemorate Dominion Day and the second at Christmas.

D.V.A. staffers in B.C. have contributed $4,000, which purchased 800 parcels.

The fund was started in February, 1948.

Decision to conclude the fund-raising campaign this year has been made because of the steadily improving food situation in the United Kingdom. However, there is still a shortage of canned meats, fruits and sweeteners like syrup and sugar, and these items will comprise the bulk of the last two shipments.

Across Canada, more than 10,000 food parcels have been sent to Britain in monthly allotments. The project has been on an entirely voluntary basis and contributors have designated British families to whom they wish parcels delivered.

The diving-bell is said to have been invented by Roger Bacon.

TO ALLEVIATE BED SHORTAGE

D.V.A. Hospitals Thrown Open To All Veterans Of Both Wars

By ROY THORSEN

Any veteran of the Canadian forces in either World War I and World War II, is now eligible, under certain conditions, to be admitted to D.V.A. hospitals for treatment.

New treatment classification is for veterans who previously were not entitled to treatment but desired to go into a veterans' rather than a civilian hospital.

Main idea behind the plan is to alleviate bed shortage in civilian hospitals across the country.

Those going to D.V.A. hospitals must remember, however, there are certain financial commitments and other features involved.

The cost is $8.65 a day. It can be paid through insurance or prepaid medical plans. If those plans do not provide the required payment the veteran must make up the difference personally.

This entitles the patient not only to ordinary hospital care, but also provides him with laboratory, X-ray services and drugs which may be prescribed for him.

It is understood veterans admitted under the new set-up will be treated the same as those admitted under any other class—hospital accommodation provided befitting their physical condition, assigned to single rooms, semi-private rooms, or wards according to how sick they are and what services they should receive.

Emphasis was made in a statement on the plan from Veterans' Affairs Minister Milton F. Gregg that "these veteran patients will only be admitted if there is accommodation in our department hospitals." Pensioned veterans get priority on beds.

Besides paying the $8.65 a day, the veteran must pay for medical or surgical care while he is in hospital, if the doctor treating him renders an account.

Only doctors on the staffs of veterans' hospitals will be allowed to treat the so-called paying patients. In other words, they will remain "closed" hospitals and patients will not be able to call in an outside doctor.

Present intention is that group or clinic medicine will be practiced by the staffs as far as this class of patient is concerned—that is, there will be unlimited consultations with specialists on the staff as indicated by the patient's condition. Special fees, as a rule, will not be submitted for these additional consultations.

To ensure the present high standard of active treatment when veterans become ill in the future, Mr. Gregg stresses "it is essential our D.V.A. hospitals remain active treatment hospitals and do not become convalescent hospitals."

The D.V.A. daily cost, since it provides many more services without extra charge than are supplied in the ordinary cost in a civilian hospital, are not any more expensive than accommodation in a civilian hospital, government officials say.

Work Nearing Completion At Power Site

B.C. Power Commission officials in Victoria report construction of the commission's biggest mainland hydro-electric project at Whatshan in the Kootenay is nearing completion.

A 600-foot concrete dam and earth fill, designed to back up the Whatshan River, has been finished. A tunnel two and a half miles long, in which Whatshan water will flow to fall steeply to the powerhouse on the shore of Arrow Lake, has been cut through and the powerhouse is almost ready.

The Whatshan development, at completion of its first phase, will generate 33,000 horsepower. Later, if demand warrants, the Whatshan capacity can be doubled.

Power from the hydro development will flow to Kamloops and its surrounding area, to Vernon and North Okanagan farms and industries. The power will go on for these areas early in 1951.

A transmission line which rises from an elevation of 1,460 feet at Cherryville to an elevation of 5,000 feet over the Monashee Mountains, is finished.

First Of Weather Ships Expected Here In August

First of three weather ships which will operate off the B.C. coast probably will arrive here in the middle of August, it was reported here today.

She is H.M.C.S. St. Stephen, presently operating on weather service in the Atlantic and due back at her Halifax base about July 3.

The frigate may leave Halifax July 15 and sail through the Panama Canal to Victoria.

She will be followed later by a second ship—probably the St. Catherine's—and finally by a third vessel, the Stonetown.

In a realignment and enlargement of the job carried out jointly by Canada and the U.S., Canada's single weather-reporting ship on the east coast will be replaced by the three on this coast. The U.S. will take over the Canadian share of the Atlantic work.

The three ships will be operated by the Department of Transport. Using Victoria as their base, each will be at sea for a six-week period, then return here for three weeks. Thus, two vessels will be at sea and one in port at any given time.

Rural School To Get Plumbing

Installation of plumbing at Keating, Prospect Lake, Saanichton and McTavish Schools will be the first work done in rural School District 63. Funds for this will come from the money by-law approved by ratepayers last Saturday.

Municipal Act forbids work being undertaken until 30 days have passed following passage of a money by-law. Five new schools will be constructed from these moneys. The school board of the district has not decided when this work will start.

Defence Orders Ready At Ottawa

Full Instructions To Be Quickly Signed If Canada Forced To Act

By NORMAN M. MACLEOD

OTTAWA (BUP)—A high government source revealed today that all orders-in-council to prepare Canada for war had been drafted and could be passed by the cabinet in an hour.

The source emphasized, however, that the step was wholly precautionary and did not imply any government belief that the Korean civil war was likely to fan out into a shooting war involving Canada.

Moscow Says U.S. In Role Of Aggressor

LONDON (UP)—Moscow accused the United States today of "direct acts of aggression" against Communist North Korea and Communist China.

First Soviet reaction to President Truman's announcement that the United States is intervening with air and naval forces to protect Formosa and South Korea came from Radio Moscow at 7:30 a.m.

The broadcast quoted the official Moscow newspaper Pravda as saying:

"President Truman's order signifies the U.S. government has taken direct acts of aggression against the (North) Korean People's Republic and against the People's Republic of China. Events in Korea which have occupied the centre of attention of world public opinion reveal with all clarity that the imperialist warmongers will not stop half-way."

Nationalists Cease Attacks On China Reds

TAIPAI, Formosa (AP)—China's Nationalists, assured that the United States 7th Fleet will protect Formosa, today ordered their planes and warships to halt attacks on the Communist mainland.

Thus an uneasy truce prevails in the civil war. The Communists are free to violate it, but only at the risk of a clash with the warships, jet fighters and bombers of the U.S. 7th Fleet.

The cease fire in no way affects the Nationalist guerrillas on the mainland. They have been reported increasingly active in the south and east. For the time being they carry the burden of the struggle.

It was emphasized that the cease fire is a temporary measure. The Nationalists do not consider that it ties their hands permanently.

The news of President Truman's move was received joyously on Formosa and several newspapers issued one-page extras. Formosa has been steeling itself for an expected Red invasion across the 100-mile wide waters on Formosa Strait.

Within one week, Canadian plants would be turning out 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition daily.

Canada would probably not attempt the production of tanks in another world war, but production of anti-tank weapons would be one of her specialties.

'Truman Doctrine' Invoked

LESS THAN THREE DAYS AFTER the Russian-sponsored government in Northern Korea began its Communist attack on Southern Korea, President Truman ordered United States planes and warships to give every possible aid to the defenders of the invaded territory. This action on the part of the chief executive at Washington—after consultation with Democratic and Republican leaders—implements in practical form the machinery of the United Nations and follows refusal of the aggressor to heed the cease-fire order issued by the Security Council last Sunday. Regardless of the obvious risks involved, the course now decided is an indication on the part of the most powerful member of the global organization that it has learned the lesson of timidity in similar circumstances which marked the failure of the first League of Nations. It should also quickly disclose just what further plans for the Asiatic continent, and elsewhere, the men of the Kremlin have up their political and military sleeves.

There was nothing ambiguous about the position in which the Washington government found itself as soon as it had learned of the "act of aggression" early on Sunday morning. In the first place, the invasion was really a calculated challenge to one of the basic principles set down in the United Nations Charter at San Francisco—to which representatives of the Soviet Union appended their signatures five years ago. In the second place, the United States, pledged under the "Truman Doctrine" of 1947 to "contain" Communism wherever it impinges on the democratic way of life, is the only nation in the disturbed area capable of translating words into action. In the third place, both the prestige of the great western republic and the future of the U.N. are at stake, the former emphasized, of course, because the Southern Korean administration of President Syngman Rhee has operated since its formation under Washington as well as United Nations sponsorship—just as the North has the blessing and support of Moscow. Thus the present state of affairs at Japan's back door resembles a macabre marionette show with the strings in the hands of the two giants of the modern world.

Shocking as the prospect appears at the moment, with the frustrations of the Second World War everywhere apparent, the facts of history will not down. Before the first League of Nations was 13 years old Japan, a signatory of the Covenant, invaded Manchuria, got a curtain lecture from the Geneva organization, and withdrew from the League. In the fall of 1935 Italy sent overwhelming forces into Ethiopia (one League member against another), counting upon the disinclination on the part of other member states to go to war. Mussolini was not impressed by the sanctions imposed on his country; his victory was bloody and speedy. Encouraged by his totalitarian mentor's successful flouting of the peace body, Hitler ordered his legions into the strategic demilitarized Rhineland in March, 1936, thus tearing up the last remnants of the Treaty of Versailles, and got nothing but wordy reprimands.

Those facts of history are well remembered by the peoples of the world who had every reason to hope after the signing of the United Nations Charter at San Francisco that another global conflict was both unthinkable and impossible. At the cross-roads again, however, they are not likely to extract much consolation out of a reflection on the oft-repeated suggestion that if Hitler had been stopped at the Rhineland bridgehead on that March day in 1936, there would have been no Second World War. Inherent in this reference is the hope that prompt action by the United States in the Korean "incident" will warn Stalin that the free world is wiser than it was 14 years ago.

Ottawa Should Take A Hand

WHEN ATTORNEY-GENERAL WISMER calls the antics of the fanatical Doukhobors "civil insurrection" he might even charge himself with an understatement. But it is a good enough term for his purpose and the people of British Columbia will approve his intention to prosecute "these insolent lawbreakers" as soon as facilities are available for appropriate punishment. For the time being, the first law officer reminds the taxpayers of the province, "unless some other method of handling these people is found (and he says this can be done only by federal authority) we will have many hundreds of these people in our penitentiaries, at a cost of many millions of dollars annually."

Not only are the fanatical elements contributing nothing toward the solution of this vexed problem; they seem to be gaining recruits all the time from the orthodox branch of the sect. How many were being added to their ranks the Attorney-General, of course, had no reliable means of estimating. It is nevertheless obvious that matters are going from bad to worse, a state of affairs which should impress itself upon the authorities at Ottawa. If only in acknowledgment of the Dominion government's share of the responsibility in the light of its original contract under which these people were brought from Russia to Canada in 1898. For as long as this problem remains unsolved, so long will outsiders, recognizing the brilliant Canadian record in varied fields of achievement in the first half of this century, wonder why about 2,000 fanatics should mar the national escutcheon.

To be sure, none better than Mr. Wismer realizes the potential value of the labors of the committee appointed to inquire into this problem in all its manifold aspects—albeit looking to the formulation of a long-range plan—but what he is naturally concerned about most is what is going to happen to law and order in the meantime. It is bad enough in all conscience for British Columbia to be perpetually confronted with a housing shortage; but when the province finds its jails overflowing with nudists and arsonists it is time for a new approach to dispose of the problem once and for all. In this the federal authorities can and should take a hand without delay.

An Odd Time To Split Hairs

WHATEVER MAY BE RUSSIA'S eventual stand on the Korean issue, the statement of the Soviet news agency, Tass, relative to the U.N.'s "cease fire" order, strikes a new high in unrealistic pedantry. That agency has termed the order illegal because Russia and the "legitimate representative" of China did not attend the session at which the order was given.

It may be some time before the question of China's representation on the Security Council is settled. In the meantime a shooting war is going on in Korea. In the interests of peace—to which all members are pledged—action is required to stop the slaughter. Under conditions like that, it is no time to split hairs over technicalities. A rough analogy may be drawn. If a person were drowning and a would-be rescuer found a life-line to throw him, would Tass argue that the rope belonged to someone else and should not have been used? Or are they being very selective as to who should be thrown ropes?

In the name of common sense, Tass might have left that despatch unwritten. Or is it that agency's desire to avoid any interference with the invasion which appeared, at first, to be a Communist success?

Acceptance Of Responsibility Is Vital Factor In Democracy

By JOSEPH LISTER RUTLEDGE

THERE is a biblical text that we should like to call to the earnest attention of our ministerial friends. We suggest it because of its perennial application and particularly because of its immediate application to our own times and our own circumstances. For, in these grave days, it often seems that we are on the look-out for evasions and palliatives rather than remedies.

OPEN INVITATION

So to our text: Judges 9:14. "Then said the trees unto the bramble, come thou and reign over us."

Let us go back to the allegory that concludes with these words. It begins: "The trees went forth on a time to anoint a king over them."

They spoke of the olive tree, but the olive tree reluctantly replied: "Should I leave my fatness and go to be promoted over the trees?"

So too the fig tree said to them: "Should I leave my wine which cheereth God and man and go to be promoted over the trees?"

Then they espied the bramble. It had no fruits. It offered no services, but it was available. It offered no argument.

"Then said the trees unto the bramble, come thou and reign over us."

It seems almost purposeless to seek applications where applications are so numerous and obvious. As we have said, it is always easier to find excuses and evasions than to find answers.

Because the system of life under which we have lived makes certain demands of us all, if it is to operate at its highest and best—we incline to evade these issues and ask for some easier system that would assure us benefits without toil or obligation. So we find it easy to turn from fruitful agencies and helpful services to dubious causes and vague promises. Then we say to the bramble: "Come thou and reign over us."

WHAT REMAINS

Then what remains for us? Inferior and inexperienced leadership: the reign of theories rather than the reign of knowledge; the little likelihood that brambles will achieve the stature of kings or even of other trees. This is all we may rightly expect when we turn from useful and productive leadership, whether in church or school, municipality or province or country to accept a kingship whose only asset is a ready and easy availability.

It Must Succeed

By WALTER LIPPMANN

MANY HARSH and resentful things have been said about Mr. Trygve Lie's efforts to save the United Nations. They stem from a belief that the United Nations is not really worth saving. The harsher critics regard the U.N. as a platform for Soviet propaganda; others feel with Dorothy Thompson that the U.N. is a disappointment and that it is nothing "except an inconclusive forum."

Now with great respect for Miss Thompson, I should like to say why I believe she is mistaken in her estimate of the United Nations. Before I do that I should say, however, that no more than she do I expect the U.N. to settle the conflict with the Soviet Union or to bring about disarmament or to accomplish great things along the lines outlined by Mr. Lie in his recent "20-year program for achieving peace through the United Nations."

NEVERTHELESS I hope and pray that he will be successful in preserving the United Nations. For I believe the foreign policy of the United States and of the Atlantic community would be quite unworkable if the United Nations dissolved. On the other hand, the Soviet Union has shown by staying out of most of the activities of the United Nations that its foreign policy is largely, though not entirely, independent of the United Nations. There is good reason to think that on balance we have far the greater interest in the survival of the U.N.

TO appreciate the value of the United Nations one has to go in fact, or at least in imagination and understanding, to the borderlands of the Atlantic community and then beyond the Western world into the Middle East and Asia. In all this vast area—in central and eastern Europe, in the Middle East, in Pakistan and India, in southeast Asia, we cannot offer to form military and political alliances. It would be a preposterous diplomatic inflation if we attempted any such thing. Nor would the offer of alliances be accepted by most of these countries. They can work with us and we can work with them only within the framework of a universal society—that is to say, of an organization which includes capitalist and socialist and Christian Democratic and Communist and Titoist regimes; which is governed by monarchists and republicans and dictators and feudal lords; with members who profess all the religions and all the ideologies and have all the colors of the human skin.

WITHOUT the United Nations I do not see how the United States or our partners in the Atlantic community can hope to retain any effective influence inside Asia except where we or they intervene directly with our own armed forces. Without committing our own forces, without intervention, we have played a leading, and on the whole a constructive, part in three great and troubled areas of Asia, in Palestine, in Indonesia, and in Kashmir. That has been possible only because of the United Nations.

It is hard to see how in the end there is to be any honorable and decent way out of the Formosa muddle and the Indo-Chinese mess unless it is found through the United Nations—that is to say, unless the influence of a large number of relatively disinterested nations, including the leading nations of Asia, can be brought to bear.

ANYTHING we now do unilaterally in Formosa will almost certainly be suspect, not only in the Soviet orbit but in most of Europe and in most of Asia. Yet we cannot stand by and see the loyal core of the Nationalists exterminated. We cannot risk having them migrate to the Philippines, thus transplanting the Chinese civil war and Chinese intrigue and Chinese corruption into the Philippines. Nor can we maintain Chiang in Formosa as permanent conqueror and carpetbagger over the abused and helpless Formosans. We need the help of other nations. We need their help as the British needed it in Palestine and in Greece, as the Dutch needed it in Indonesia, as the French will need it in China. We shall need help to extricate ourselves decently from a situation which is no longer manageable by our own power and influence alone.

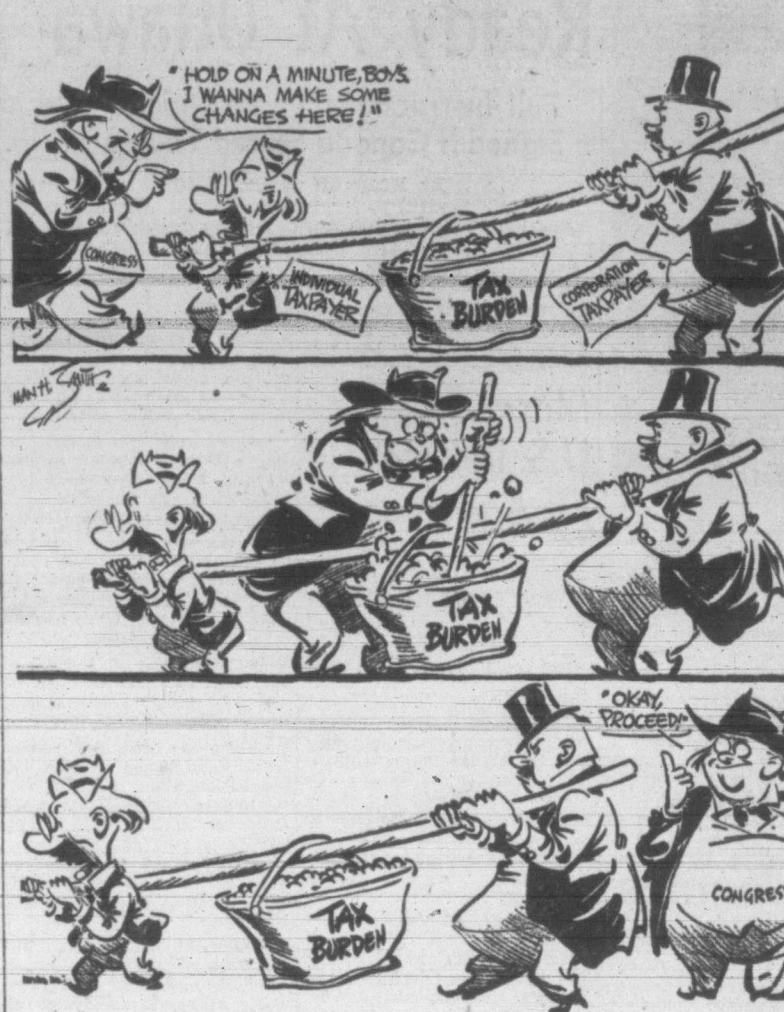

I AM AFRAID that the Kremlin realizes better than Mr. Trygve Lie's American critics how necessary is the United Nations to the diplomatic influence and action of the Western nations. That is why the Soviet Union is so unconcerned about the prestige and the effectiveness of the United Nations.

On the other hand, the Kremlin knows enough about the sentiment of mankind to realize that no nation can afford to be held responsible, as Hitler and Mussolini with the League, for the break-up of the United Nations. The many different nations within the Soviet Union and the great multitudes everywhere would regard the second failure of the universal society as the ominous and certain sign that a universal war was imminent. In the terrible foreboding and panic which would count on the whole-hearted support of the masses, and few governments on their complete loyalty.

THE KREMLIN cannot, therefore, afford to destroy the U.N. But it does not need a U.N. which works. It needs only a U.N. which exists. We, on the other hand, need a U.N. which works well enough to permit us to collaborate with the great masses of the peoples and their governments who are outside our alliances.

That is why we have to hope that Mr. Lie will succeed, and that our partners and friends will find a way, since we are stopped from doing so, to help him to succeed.

A U.S. Jibe

Plane Of The Future—Today

By CHARLES GARDNER From London

THE R.A.F.'s new night fighter, the Meteor NF 11, has just come off the secret list. This airplane is the R.A.F.'s first jet night fighter and it will take the place of the famous old Mosquito—now out-dated and out-climbed by that very generation of new high level bombers which the Mosquito itself can be said to have sired. In its wartime day the Mosquito could out-climb and out-distance most other airplanes, but in the march of progress it, too, has now been left behind.

MODERN DEFENCE

Jet bombers are already about to come into service in both the British and U.S. air forces, and possibly in other air forces as well, and the only fighter which can catch a jet bomber is obviously a jet fighter. Hence, the Meteor NF 11 which will give Britain (and later, presumably, Western Union) the same modern defence at night as she now has in daytime.

The new plane's performance, details are a secret, but its two Rolls Royce Derwent engines should give it a top speed comparable to the 600 m.p.h. of the ordinary Meteors. One of the biggest developments of the last war in bombing technique was that of the "blind" attack using downward-looking radar to find the target. This technique has now been further developed and the day when the bomber had to "see" its objective has gone. There is now no reason why a medium-level attack should not be delivered from a cloud cover, which means that the bombers would never be visible to the ordinary fighter whose pilot must in the last resort rely on eyesight to make his attack. For such bad weather defence, therefore, the radar-carrying two-seater, with an airborne radar operator guiding and positioning the fight just as in normal night defence, has recently become essential. But even in clear skies at altitudes of 45,000 feet and over—which are the sort of heights to which the air war is now climbing—it is doubtful if a single seater is the best instrument of defence.

Bomber speeds are now approaching the 600 m.p.h. mark and are flying at heights where the sky tends to darken from sheer altitude. In these circumstances and at such speeds, the fighter must position himself for his attack some distance from the bomber—the manoeuvring ability of both aircraft being fairly limited in such thin air. It follows, therefore, that the fighter pilot must have long-range radar guidance to get into his best position before the bomber is upon him and such guidance can only come from instruments carried in his own machine.

FUTURE TREND

It is for these reasons that many experts think that the days of single-seater "eyesight" fighters are nearly over and that in the future the trend will be for all defence squadrons to have radar-carrying, two-seater aircraft, and for the old distribution between day and night fighters to gradually disappear. The Meteor 11, therefore, may be the first of a long line of weapons of new defence.

As Our Readers See It

LIKES CONTROL

I have been a visitor in your beautiful city several days this week. Last night I read a statement of George Angelou of the BBC and I was surprised to read his statement about "more drunks here."

Frankly, I've been over this city many times and I have not seen one drunk man or woman during my entire stay here.

It regret to say that we Californians blush with shame when we see the cocktail bars and eating places filled with drunk men and women. They wander out on the streets; some get in their cars and most automobile accidents are caused by drunk drivers.

As a businesswoman who sees both sides of the issue I know you are blessed with having the kind of control you have here. Thanks for a refreshing stay in your city and the pleasure of reading your fine paper.

WAR INEVITABLE?

Expressing thanks to Mr. Jolly, also to the many inquiries made privately, on the above subject outlined in my letter of June 12, it will be necessary, in order to get an overall picture of the final act in the next world war, to review three pertinent Biblical references, viz., the 38th and 39th chapters of Ezekiel, and the 14th of Zachariah. These Scriptures require an exacting study.

"Gog" interpreted by many eminent Bible authorities and scholars as Russia, and the great confederacy as all those countries dominated by Russia. The arrow of current events incidental to her iron curtain policy and oblique performances in international councils points accusingly in this direction.

Russia's allies are listed in Ezek. 38:5, 6. The opposing forces are named in Ezek. 38:13 and may be said to consist chiefly of the British Commonwealth of Nations, the U.S.A. and certain of the "Western nations."

Five-sixths of the invading host will be slain. Ezek. 39:2.

Seven months will be required to bury the dead. Ezek. 39:12.

The impact of other miraculous events connected with this final act ("that great day of God Almighty") is beyond the bounds of language to express. While all the chancelleries of the world and their allied institutions are working the nations into a tizzy about the cold war and fanatically speculating about the future, with politicians jockeying for selfish material advantage and beating the air in bitter fruitless discussions, would it not be infinitely more profitable if they would focus their attention on these momentous matters "that must shortly come to pass" as laid down in the agenda of that supreme authority, the Bible?

A POWERFUL deterrent to another world war may well have been provided by the United States' quick compliance with the United Nations resolution calling on members to lend support to the peace organization's demand for a halt in the Korean fighting.

That forthright action by the United States also may have saved the U.N. from the same fate as the late League of Nations.

The League died from lack of support to deal with aggression such as was displayed by Japan in its assault on Manchuria in 1931, and by Mussolini in his attack on little Ethiopia in 1935.

But the call of the U.N. hasn't fallen on unwilling ears. Had it done so, the usefulness of the U.N. would have been greatly impaired, if not destroyed.

There is no challenge to war in President Truman's action in sending American air and naval forces to aid the southern Korean republic which is being attacked by the army of the Russian-sponsored Communist government of northern Korea. On the contrary, it is a move wholly dedicated to peace.

The future trend of the cold war, especially in the great Asiatic theatre, may pivot on this development. If this aggression isn't halted in its inception there is no telling to what ends it might lead. We are not putting too fine a point on it in recognizing the obvious fact that this Red aggression, if allowed to succeed without resistance, undoubtedly would inspire other aggression. It would be an invitation to militaristic communism to venture on similar programs in Indonesia, Burma, India, Tibet, and where not.

TOO MUCH

Ottawa Citizen

After grappling with a series of highly complex municipal problems, such as annexation, garbage collection, and the installation of new water mains, Ottawa's City Council is being asked to improve the town's morals by prohibiting the wearing of shorts on the streets. The aldermen have been unable to make up their minds on a relatively simple matter like the choice of a location for the new city hall. To have to decide the much more difficult question of whether it is immoral to wear shorts would be almost more than the average alderman could bear.

NEW ZEALAND SENATE

Edmonton Journal

Here in Canada proposals to do away with, or reform, our senate have long since become something of a joke. But in New Zealand, the matter has been taken up in earnest. Prime Minister Sidney Holland, leader of the recently victorious National party, has announced that he will introduce legislation at the next session of parliament to abolish the legislative council, the equivalent of our senate. If this goes through, it will make New Zealand the first dominion with a single-chamber legislature.

OPPORTUNITY

Winnipeg Free Press

Many farmers in western Canada seem to be missing a chance to diversify their production. They are planting wheat to substantially the same acreage as last year and are neglecting the opportunities available in livestock production.

The failure of farmers to increase livestock production is nowhere better exemplified than in the case of sheep. The price of lamb is high and so is the price of wool but these high prices do not seem to be encouraging any increase in production.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

ACCORDING to the old saying," said the Elevator Man, "there's none so blind as those who will not see. You could apply that to that fella in Britain who was let out of prison the other day with only half his sentence served because he'd gone blind. Within 48 hours of getting out he was delighted to report that his sight had returned. And within another 48 hours he was back inside again, charged with stealing a bike. Now there's a man who has his faculties under good control. His only trouble seems to be that he can't see a blue uniform until it's too late. Going down!"

"Maybe," said the Elevator Man, "he was looking out for the wrong danger at the time. That's a common fault. You remember the story of the little old lady who was found sitting in the centre of a golf course. 'You'd better look out, Mother,' said a golfer who drove his ball close by. 'Don't you know it's dangerous to be sitting there?' 'Oh, it's all right,' she answered. 'I'm sitting on a newspaper.' Lower main!"

"Well," said the Elevator Man, "a lot of us are in much the same situation. While we're making sure we don't catch a cold in Greece or Indo-China, we get hit on the back of the head with a golf ball in Korea. It's hard to know which danger to look out for, these days. But at least we're trying. Come to think of it, that English jaiilbird was better off than the people behind the iron curtain. When he went blind he was let out. But being blind is the surest guarantee that they'll stay where they are. The less they can see the longer they'll be held, and there doesn't seem to be any parole board operating at the moment."

Saanich Berry Patches Scenes Of Activity

Saanich peninsula berry patches are active places these days. Many holidaying school children are earning extra pocket money by picking. These two pickers, Miss Valerie Bate and Mrs. E. THE HOME GARDEN

Pruning Important Now To Plants And Gardens

By JACK BEASTALL
Pruning is an important operation at this season.

It is not only good for the plants themselves, it adds to the well-groomed appearance of the entire garden.

This work is neglected by many home gardeners and the reason, as far as I can determine, is because they do not know the names of the various plants and shrubs they are growing.

They are therefore unable to study the cultural needs of their garden material in the many good books and bulletins which are available.

The majority of the flowering shrubs bear next year's flowers on the new wood produced this season. To encourage this new growth, all parts which have just flowered are either removed entirely, or pruned back.

CARE WITH HYDRANGEAS

Some, however, make new growth this year, form flower buds on it next year, and blossom the following year. The pruning of hydrangeas is contingent on the variety. Severe pruning each year is needed by some, while the same treatment to others will remove the buds of future flowers.

'Feather Bed' Evans Still Scores British Farmers

Ex-Minister Relegated To Commons; Back Benchers Say They Have It Easy

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Stanley Norman Evans, whose attacks on agriculture have assured him immortality as "feather bed" Evans of Britain's 39th Parliament, appears to have much public support.

An opinion poll conducted by British newspapers shows 77 per cent of persons interviewed agree with Evans that farmers have it soft—just ahead of coal miners among classes of the community regarded as especially well off.

That is just about what Evans said in his famous "feather-bedding" speech that cost him his job. In that speech, the former Birmingham business man asserted farmers are being subsidized—he called it "feather-bedding"—at the expense of the consumers.

Agriculture, and Prime Minister Attlee, reacted quickly. Evans spoke on a Friday in the full glory of his title as parliamentary secretary to the Food Ministry. When the new week started, he was just an ordinary back-bencher again.

Big, bull-shouldered Sir James Turner, chief of the powerful National Farmers' Union, said cryptically:

"Let this matter drop as quickly as possible. It is much better to allow it to die a natural death."

That was two months ago. Now Evans is back on the attack, as vociferous on the back benches as he ever was as a junior minister.

Prices, Lumber Shortage Reduce Home Building

Winters Tells Commons C.M.H.C. Postpones 4 Projects But No Bigger Loans Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's home-construction program has run into a two-pronged snag—a new upsurge in building costs and a shortage of lumber.

Resources Minister Winters told the Commons Tuesday night that the two factors are "likely" to reduce the number of homes constructed this year.

"Prices of lumber have increased sharply in all parts of the country," Mr. Winters said, "and there now is evidence that even at increased prices lumber is not readily available for house builders."

The increase had forced the Crown-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to postpone four projects for married quarters for defence personnel because the prices bid by contractors ranged from $800 to $1,300 a unit above prices for similar houses in 1949.

The same trend is showing in private house building," he said. Mr. Winters spoke as the chamber considered a $75,000,000 item in his departmental estimates to cover advances to C.M.H.C., the government-operated lending institution.

Donald Fleming (P.C.-Toronto-Eglinton) said that if the rise in building costs continued, the benefits of the National Housing Act would be nullified unless the government raised the amount of loans available under the act.

NO ADJUSTMENT

Mr. Winters said the government did not intend to adjust loans to take care of "marked increases in cost both to the builder and the home-owner resulting from the increase in the price of lumber."

"We deem it better," he added, "to face a decline in the number of starts rather than add to the inflationary trend."

The minister recalled the Housing Act was amended at the last session of Parliament to permit the federal government and the provinces to enter agreements leading to public assistance in the housing field.

Since then, the federal government had discussed with the provinces "activity in some 20 or 30 municipalities." Over all agreements with Ontario and British Columbia had been concluded.

Local Potatoes On Market Soon

Local potatoes are expected to be on the market within the next 10 days. Until these appear, the California variety is reported to be the choicest available supplies.

No cherries have as yet made their appearance here. It is expected that the first shipment will come from the Okanagan, but no definite date has been given for their arrival.

Supplies of Santa Rosa plums are reported to be abundant in local stores.

LONDON (CP)—Composer Eric Coates is to write a march entitled "Hoborn" to commemorate the golden jubilee of that borough.

In Ontario, there was at present a lack of serviced land within the large municipalities.

The federal government was now working with the Ontario government towards a "substantial" number of land-assembly projects under which land would be serviced and made available to private builders prepared to build homes of a type at a price satisfactory to the two governments.

In British Columbia, negotiations were under way and Mr. Winters hoped that "before long" it would be possible to announce classes to be undertaken in that province.

Preliminary conversations also had been started with Saskatchewan, though the point had not yet been reached where specific projects were under consideration.

Prospectors Hunt For Diamonds In Big Area In Northern Quebec

VAL D'OR, Que. (BUP)—Prospects of discovering diamond deposits in this northern Quebec gold mining town have set inhabitants wondering whether they are sitting atop another bonanza.

Full-scale drilling operations for the prized jewels are being started on a farm site 15 miles from here.

Since possibilities of diamond discovery became known, more than 4,000 acres in the adjoining area have been staked out by companies planning to conduct exploratory work.

The prospect of diamond deposits first became known towards the end of 1948 when resident Alvida Duval planned an artesian well on his farm at Vassan.

Two professional Val d'Or diamond drillers, Ozias and Pierre Allard, were called in to dig the well between Duval's home and barn. At the 60-foot level the Allard brothers were started to find a rock formation resisting the diamond-picked drill.

After repeated efforts, they were able to break through the obstruction. But the brothers decided to send some of the rock dust for a laboratory analysis.

Later the provincial mines department advised them the rock dust was in reality diamond-grains.

Geologists Norman Peale and J. C. Honsberger of Val d'Or believe the rock struck by the Allard brothers' drill must have been a two-carat diamond.

Peale is supervising the new diamond-seeking operations on the Duval farm.

Peale and Honsberger said the rock formation in the Vassan region dates to the pre-cambrian era.

FROM THE FANSTAND

By PETE SALLAWAY, Times Sports Editor

Peculiar chain of circumstances might well cost Victoria Athletics the services of outfielder K. Chorlton for the remainder of the season. Such a happening would be a serious blow to the club as his return, along with the addition of hard-hitting Johnny Hack, would provide the A's with one of the most potent outfields in the Western International League, both offensively and defensively.

Athletics Victims Of Fate

Chorlton's hasty departure from the Athletics came a lot quicker than expected. Business manager Reg Patterson was warned one day by Earl Sheely, boss man of the Seattle Rainiers, to be prepared for Chorlton's possible recall. The next day Seattle fly-chaser Bill Ramsey crashed into a wall going after a ball in Los Angeles and forced out of action. The call came for Chorlton immediately.

That was not so bad as Sheely promised his return to the A's this week. Then Sunday Seattle manager Paul Richards got into a word battle with outfielder Marv Rackley and he jumped the club and, up to the time of writing, had remained among the missing. If the Rainiers and Rackley fail to get together it's a safe bet Chorlton will remain with the Coast League club. Fate just seems to be working against the Victoria club.

Their Opinions Differ

Recent outburst of home-run hitting in the major ball leagues has brought about much discussion as to the reason for the sudden spurge of four masters. The debate rages among the men who hit and throw the 1950 ball and among those who watch it sail out of sight.

The agate is so hopped up that pitchers take their lives in their hands when they step on the mound, contends the Philadelphia Athletics' venerable Connie Mack. Bob Feller, Cleveland pitcher: "So far as I can see, the ball is the same as always. It's just inferior pitching."

Steve O'Neill, new Boston Red Sox manager: "Maybe it's just better hitting—or the weather—or just plain luck."

Hank Greenberg, Cleveland general manager: "It's not the ball, it's the weather. The pitchers have been working in cool weather. Then it suddenly gets hot and humid. They're not used to it and after two innings they haven't anything on the ball."

Joe Page, New York Yankees' relief ace: "That ball this year is pure lightning."

The New Society Of Sports

Modern sport comes in for a sizzling blast from Bob Considine, noted New York sports writer, in the current edition of Flair. "There is nothing wrong with modern sports that a squirt of plasma and a box of male hormone lozenges couldn't almost cure," he writes. "Shooting a few dozen sports officials might not be a bad idea, either!" he adds.

"The old gashouse spirit is lost," says Considine, condemning the growing timidity of players and dictatorial rise among officials. His feature stresses the ugly fact that guys with guts are rapidly transformed into the gutless phase... through fear of fines and suspensions.

Equipment Squad Wins Spring Fivepin Crown

Cleveland Equipment won the championship of Gibson's Mixed Spring Fivepin League last night finishing with a 21-pin bulge over Seven-Up in the five-game, total-pin rolloff.

The Equipment dealers played with a handicap of 390 totaling 5,453 pins to 5,432 for the scratch Seven-Up squad.

Jewels took third money with 5,379; Windsor U Drive were fourth count, 5,221; Gee Jays fifth with 5,173; Knockouts sixth with 5,155; D.V.A. Aces seventh with 5,133; McFalks eighth with 5,052; Pirates ninth with 4,914, and Cleveland Equipment's second team 10th with 4,857.

HOLNESS HIGH

Harry Holness paced the winners with a five-game total of 1,179. Other members of the team included Don McCaig 1,090; Vera Holness 918; Lorna Luney 792 and Bill Coates 995.

Hugh Cowan and Mae White topped the individual averages in league play. Cowan with 248 leading the men's section and Miss White with 241 pacing the women.

Name Colville Ranger Coach

NEW YORK (CP)—Neil Colville, former crack centre and defence player for New York Rangers, Monday was named coach of National Hockey League team. He succeeds Lynn Patrick, who resigned last May.

Colville, a native of Edmonton, since December, 1948, has been coach of New Haven Ramblers of the American Hockey League. The appointment was announced by John Reed Kilpatrick, President of Madison Square Garden, which controls the Rangers.

Colville, 36, made the League's second all-star team as centre, and duplicated the feat as a defenceman several years later. Patrick, member of one of hockey's most famous families, resigned after losing the Stanley Cup playoffs this spring.

Luke Easter gets a good look at Elmer Valo's throw to Fernin Guerra as Cleveland Indians' huge first baseman slides home safely against Philadelphia Athletics in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium. Mainland Shot In Feature Prize Win

The first day of the five-day 66th annual prize meeting of the British Columbia Rifle Association at Heals Range was brought to a close yesterday with the completion of four afternoon events. The Logana and Dunbar matches were won by Sgt. E. R. Jamieson and Bdsam, F. Drysdale, respectively.

The whole day was given to service conditions matches, with only servicemen or veterans allowed to enter. Craftsman M. S. Kent, headquarters B.C. Area, Vancouver, won the service conditions aggregate with a score of 156 points out of the 200 possible.

The first event of the afternoon, the Parkhurst Match, was won by Cfm. Kent, who posted a score of 40. Kent also placed second to Jamieson in the Logana Match.

The Parkhurst shoot is over a 300-yard range. Targets are exposed for 10 seconds at regular intervals and contestants fire 10 rounds.

Winner of the Rapid-Fire event was Pte. Jack MacNeil, who posted a high score of 40, garnered on three bulls' eyes, four ringers and three magpies. Eleven shots, one too many, were fired on MacNeil's target, and he was given the choice of re-shooting or forfeiting one bull's eye, which he did. MacNeil is a former member of the Canadian Blesley team.

SEAFORTHS WIN

The winning team of the Bren Gun competition was the Seaforts Highlanders of Vancouver, who posted a score of 90. The competition was shot from the 400, 300 and 200-yard marks. Each member of the three-man team shoots at only one range. The match is a "run-down" event.

The Canadian Scottish Regiment won the Wilkerson Shield, for top scores in the service conditions aggregate. They posted a score of 518 points.

The Westminster Regiment team won the P.P.C.L.L. Service Trophy by knocking all plates down in 35.5 seconds. Each member of the five-man team is given five rounds. The team with all their plates down in the shortest time wins. The range is 200 yards.

SEATTLE (AP)—An 18-year-old kid with a biting fast ball and ice water in his veins Monday night pitched the first no-hit, no-run game in the history of the annual All-American junior baseball contests to give Seattle a 5 to 0 victory over State.

The no-hitter was tossed by Don Rosburg, Cleveland High School right-hander, in the nightcap of a twin bill after State had taken the opener, 11 to 2. Both games went seven innings.

New Type Hospital Cures Mental Cases

LONDON (Reuter)—A Viennese doctor, who came to Britain just before the war, has revealed to psychiatrists and health ministry officials secrets of a new-type hospital here which claims to mend broken hearts, wipe out frightening blitz memories and cure anxiety neuroses.

This pioneer hospital, at Hampstead, London, has been incorporated into Britain's National Health Service and its success will lead to the opening of similar hospitals elsewhere.

The doctor, Joshua Bierer, believes thousands of men and women are certified insane and sent to mental hospitals when two weeks of sympathetic treatment might make them normal citizens again.

SOCIAL CLUBS

Social activities are one of the most important methods in Dr. Bierer's treatment. Patients invite friends to social clubs. Often nobody knows who are the patients among those present.

Dr. Bierer has supplanted the verbal method of analysis and explanation of cause by a method of treatment by experience which is known as "situational treatment."

The special needs of each patient are subtly planned in a scheme to draw patients into social activities with each other. Often they are drawn naturally into doing things of which they believe themselves incapable.

By these methods, Dr. Bierer claims to have cured broken hearts caused by grief, nervous breakdowns resulting from domestic unhappiness after effects of wartime experiences, anxiety neuroses and nervous disorders, shyness and blushing.

A child guidance clinic attached to the hospital claims similar successes with children—many of them victims of wartime evacuation from the cities, who believe their parents abandoned them through lack of love.

Dr. Bierer served in the British army during the war and dreamed then of the project which he has since supervised. He established his pioneer hospital in 1947, taking patients on a day-by-day, non-residential basis.

Later the hospital was taken into the National Health Service, but an institute for social psychiatry attached to it is still run independently. This organizes after-care treatment, research and a chain of therapeutic social clubs in many parts of London. The whole conception is being steadily enlarged as research goes forward.

RECOVERY RETARDED

Dr. Bierer believes mental strain retards the recovery of at least one in three patients in ordinary British hospitals.

His deputy, Dr. E. N. Snowden, told visitors to the hospital: "We catalogue everything about our patients—all aspects of their attitude to life and environment. Then we bring them into the scope of social activities like drama, music appreciation, art and handicrafts."

Dr. Snowden said they pinned their hopes on more day hospitals. At the pioneer hospital patients are treated by a team of eight specialist psychiatrists during the day, but go home each night. Thus these avoid the unnatural and depressing atmosphere of most mental hospitals.

However, when left alone in another cage, they jumped into the water and splashed about like a couple of kids in the old swimming hole.

Accepts Newcomers Up To 45 Years, Including Parents With Two Children

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—Faced with a decline in the flow of unmarried migrants from Britain and a continued acute labor shortage, New Zealand has widened the scope of its assisted migration scheme in a bid to get the cream of Britons wishing to settle abroad in Commonwealth countries.

Because of the housing shortage, New Zealand has so far limited its post-war immigration scheme to single men and women under 35 and skilled in various occupations for which there is an unsatisfied labor market in the Dominion. Most of them have had to pay part of their fares.

Now the upper age limit has been extended to 45 and married workers with up to two children can qualify for passage. In addition, all those selected will have the whole cost of their fares paid by the New Zealand government. New Zealand will also seek unmarried skilled workers in Europe.

At present, only about 2,500 migrants a year are being brought to the country under government schemes. It is hoped to step up the number to 10,000, but transport and housing problems will not make it possible for this target to be reached for a year or more. Married workers at first will be limited to those recruited for hydro-electric construction scheme and workers for building and similar industries.

In spite of the its accommodation problems, however, New Zealand will again accept from the International Refugee Organization this year 1,000 displaced persons, including a proportion of elderly people beyond the age to be of economic value to the country. The Dominion made a similar gesture last year as a contribution to the solution of the refugee problem.

The decision to include elderly people, banned from drafts accepted by most countries, was hailed as a fine humanitarian action by families in camps throughout Europe last year who faced disruption on account of age limits.

Disasters Add Canadian Unity

COWANSVILLE, Que. (BUP)—The Manitoba floods and Rimouski and Cabano fires, disastrous as they were, showed the people of Canada we're Canadians first of all, Mayor Romuald Bourque of Outremont said here.

The questions of religion, race and language were forgotten by all when the disasters struck, he said. During the Manitoba floods nobody in Quebec province asked how many of the flood victims spoke French or how many were of the Roman Catholic faith.

During the Rimouski and Cabano fires in Quebec, nobody in Ontario asked how many of the fire victims were English, or how many were Protestants.

"It was enough to know," said Bourque, "that people of these Canadian communities needed help. The next thing to do was to get it to them as quickly as possible."

The flood disaster in the west and the fires in the east were sad and costly.

"They show, however," he added, "the great unity and understanding of Canadians when some of Canada's citizens are in trouble."

"They offer to the skeptic the greatest proof that regardless of all our faults and all our errors of the past, Canada is becoming one united nation and Canadians are becoming one people."

Lowly Spud Wins Bout With Planned Economy

Big Crop Cause Of $30,800,000 Loss To U.K. Labor Government's Trading Policy

WASHINGTON (UP)—The lowly spud has won another bout with planned economy.

This victory took place in Great Britain where the Socialist government's Ministry of Food has reported on its 1948-49 potato trading.

The British Ministry of Food buys all standard potatoes at a fixed price. For its 1948-49 operations the ministry announced a loss of more than $30,000,000.

Ministry losses on potato and carrot trading was $32,551,093.60. That is quite a chunk of money although not to be compared with Commodity Credit Corporation losses here in attempting to handle the potato problem.

CROPS TOO BIG

British and U.S. potato plans alike were wrecked by big crops. Like the Americans, the British had to dispose of many tons of potatoes for stock-feed or alcohol production at millions of dollars under cost.

The report showed a steady increase in the cost of British food subsidies since the first full year of Socialist control of the government.

The British government has been able to maintain its wage freeze and profit control so far only by liberal subsidy of food prices to hold the retail price line. Even so there is now tremendous pressure from 5,000,000 British trade unionists to break through the wage freeze.

Although big crops were the major factors in potato control cost in both the United States and Great Britain, the control objectives were wholly different. Here the government sought to keep prices up in behalf of the producer. To do so the government bought up the surplus crops.

Government tinkering with potato prices began in the early 1930's. Government losses on the last four crops, 1946-49, were about $450,000,000.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles P. Brannan announced this year the government would sell for three-fifths of a cent a bushel the potatoes it had purchased at $1.10. They were painted blue to prevent them from getting into the food markets.

The government's hottest potato year was 1948 when losses were about $222,000,000. Its investment in price support for farm products now is nearly $4,000,000,000.

Barbecue Earns Funds For Church

LONDON (UP)—Britain's first public barbecue and square dance enriched a war-bombed church's building fund by $1,400. Eight hundred Londoners attended.

Rev. John Nickels, rector of St. Mary the Bolton's Anglican Church, staged the affair on a bombed site in Kensington after recalling the good time he had at a war-time barbecue in California while serving as a Royal Navy chaplain there.

New Tobacco Types Tested In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG (CP)—To meet the crisis of over-production now threatening the Union's tobacco growers, intensive efforts are under way at Rustenburg in the Transvaal, South Africa's main tobacco area, to breed new types of tobacco plant, the leaf of which can be exported.

Numerous new strains of Orinoco tobacco, the type in world demand, have been imported from America, Rhodesia, and elsewhere for breeding, crossing and testing in the Transvaal. If the breeders at the Rustenburg research station succeed, the shadow of a glut in fine-cured Virginia, the highest-priced kind of tobacco, might be dispersed, for the surplus would then become exportable.

The big stumbling block to export is the conservative taste of overseas smokers who are not accustomed to the aroma of South African tobacco.

The experimenters are having difficulties. The climate and most of the soil used for tobacco in the Transvaal differ widely from those of Virginia and Rhodesia, where Orinoco

Moreover, Orinoco yields much less leaf per acre, is difficult to grow, difficult to cure after harvesting and is highly susceptible to white rust, a disease of little importance in Virginia or Rhodesia.

LATE JAMES A. GLEN

Ex-Minister, Former Speaker, Dies In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—A Scotsman who emigrated to Canada and ruled over Canada's House of Commons debates for five years, Hon. James Allison Glen, 72, died at his home here Tuesday night.

Four times elected to the Commons, the former Russell, Man., barrister was chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission at the time of his death.

He was Speaker of the Commons during the critical war years from 1940 until 1945, when he entered the cabinet as Minister of Mines and Resources. He resigned his seat in 1947 due to ill health.

Son of a Renton, Dumbartonshire, boot and shoe merchant, Mr. Glen graduated in law from Glasgow University and emigrated to Canada in 1911. He went straight to Winnipeg, where he had friends and business contacts and later set up a law practice at Russell, where he resided until taking up residence in Ottawa in the 1940s.

He was an early member of the Progressive Party in Manitoba. When the party entered the 1921 general election under the leadership of T. A. Crerar, now Senator Crerar, Mr. Glen served as election agent for his chief. He also won his own first seat in the Commons.

Defeated in 1930, he returned to the Commons as Progressive-Liberal member for the Manitoba constituency of Marquette in 1935 and was re-elected in 1940 and 1945.

In failing health in 1946, he was forced to give up the Mines and Resources portfolio the following year and was subsequently appointed Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission.

Relatives surviving him include his wife, here, and a son, David Paul Glen, a commercial airline pilot.

Farm Hands Better Off In West With B.C. Tops

General Scale of Agricultural Wages Down Across Canada; Ontario, Saskatchewan, Up

OTTAWA (CP)—It's a case of "Go west, young man," for the farm-hand who wants to make more money.

On the whole, the scale of wages paid to Canadian farm-hands declined slightly on May 15, but the Bureau of Statistics reported today that rates in the western provinces are higher than those in the east.

The British Columbia farm-hand got an average of $4.72 a day plus board. That was less than the $5.06 he received in mid-May last year, but well above the $3.44 being paid to the farm-hand in Nova Scotia and the $3.41 paid in New Brunswick.

British Columbia farm-hands drawing weekly pay without board also were ahead. Their average wage was $6 against only $3.75 in Prince Edward Island, $4.44 in Quebec and $3.13 in Ontario.

The bureau reported that average daily wage rates for all Canada with board provided dropped from $4.04 in May, 1949, to $3.84 in May, 1950.

Without board, the average rate for all Canada was $4.80 against $5.06 last year. Increases were reported for Ontario and Saskatchewan, but rates were lower in other provinces. The $3 and board which the farm-hand in Prince Edward Island received was 10 cents above his daily wage a year ago. The Ontario farm-hand made $4.12 plus board—a one-cent increase over his 1949 average wage. The Saskatchewan worker made $4.37 which was 19 cents more than in 1949.

In the case of monthly wages, the average all-Canada rate with board increased to $34.64 compared with $33.73 in 1949 and $33.26 two years ago. The average rate without board was $113.76 compared with $113.89 and $113.07 in the two previous years.

Monthly wages with board were higher in six provinces. Lower rates were reported only for New Brunswick, Quebec and British Columbia. Rates without board were lower in five and higher in four provinces, ranging from $82.35 in Prince Edward Island to $123.11 in Alberta.

Bank Teller Says Suspect Man Who Killed Constable

MONTREAL (CP)—A 19-year-old bank cashier said Tuesday night Thomas Rossier is the man who last month shot and killed an R.C.M.P. constable during an attempted bank hold-up here.

"I'm sure that's the man," cashier Doris Paris said when confronted with the 45-year-old ex-convict at police headquarters here.

Twelve other witnesses also paraded before the identification line-up and picked Rossier as the murder suspect. They included bank employees and bystanders who saw the gunman run out of the bank and shoot two men who tried to cut off his path of escape.

One of them, Constable Alex Gamman, died 35 hours later from a single bullet wound above the heart. The other, bank manager Stanley Bickley, was shot in the left leg.

Rossier was captured in White-tail, Mont., last week. He has not yet been charged with murder.

By ART STOTT

IN THE LITTLE came he wrote for this month's Canadian National Magazine, Ed. Donohoe makes the point that every railroad man, especially if he belongs to a train crew, needs to be something of an encyclopaedia. Every time a Canadian National passenger train goes through a tunnel, Donohoe says, some traveler wants to know how long it is. It's the same with bridges. How long are they, and how high?

A. G. Barker, up from San Francisco on his regular summer visit with old shipmates here, might say, "How true, how true, how very true," and then add something not quite so polite. Barker retired as senior purser on Canadian Pacific coastwise ships in 1938. He had spent a third of a century on them, a lot of it on the northern run to Alaska.

THE CALL of the far north sounds so faintly for him now that he can't hear it. He has no nostalgic yearnings to return to the land into which he took miners and prospectors shortly after the turn of the century.

The traveling public, Barker says—and he's part of it, now—stays the same in many respects. It's still asking the same "dam-fool" questions. Those queries pile up on a man in uniform on a ship or a train.

Barker relieved his tensions in a simple way a year or two ago. He was taking a boat trip on a vessel whose purser was an old acquaintance. During a lull in the office, the veteran C.P.R. man sat down before the purser's desk and asked him every question that he could recall being asked himself.

THE PURSER took it all quietly. When Barker had finished, the purser's face creased in a smile of satisfaction. "To you, as a friend," he said, "I can speak frankly. You I can tell where to go and what to do with your questions—and he did."

Barker may have no hankering to return to the north, but his memories of the old days on St. Amur and other craft are vivid. Travel was heavy then. Passengers were usually miners and entertainers. Cargo was mainly mining equipment. Use of dredges, he thinks, depopulated the Yukon. A crew would move into a river, buy out the small operators and with two dozen men work territory where one or two hundred had been mining with primitive equipment.

CURRENCY WAS less a matter of small coins in those days. A 25-cent piece was the lowest recognized in the bars. Anything less was swept to the sawdust floor for the clean-up crew—too small to bother with. Prices though, were reasonable. Champagne came to 50 cents a glass.

Barker first saw Prince Rupert when men were clearing it for a townsite. He once owned timber rights on 640 acres on the Skeena. It was the finest yellow cedar available, but he collected nothing for it. Before it could be cut, a forest fire swept through the area and he had only stands of charred stumps to show for his investment.

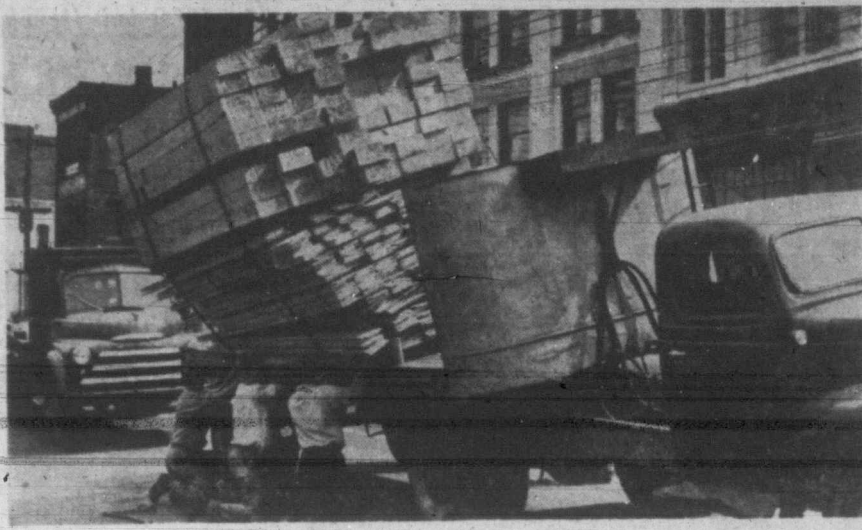

On the odd occasion when he grubstaked a miner, his luck was better. They usually came through, repaying their debts when they struck gold.

HE EXPECTS Alaska to achieve statehood, and to pay for it in taxes. Products of the mines and the fisheries, in his opinion, will continue to be the economic strength of that part of the world. Some of the finest pulp stands on the continent are in that territory, but they're a long way from a market.

Barker's friends will tell you of his ingenuity in meeting the problems of heavy passenger lists. When ordinary accommodation was all taken and when distinguished visitors bunked in improvised dormitories below decks, feeding the multitude was something that couldn't be done with five loaves and two small fishes.

In the butcher shop of one northern port, where he had gone to provision for a full sailing south, Barker found the main meat supply restricted to venison. He ordered all he could get. In the ship's galley it became anything from mutton stew to sirloin steaks. No order of venison ever underwent so many changes to suit the palates of diners of different tastes.

THAT WAS part of the routine in the days when the C.P.R. was building up its reputation for service and efficiency on the sailings to and from Alaska—that and answering a thousand questions from a traveling public that isn't too discriminating in its quest for information.

Three courageous characters are these lumber truckers trying rescue of load which shifted on Government Street this morning. Mountain of timbers would be in their laps if holding chains broke. They didn't, though, and load was fixed.

Kent Wins Woodward Trophy, Lightburn Takes Westminster

The second day of the B.C. R.A.'s annual five-day prize meeting shoot at Heals Range got off to an early start this morning with the shooting of the Woodward and Westminster matches. Weather conditions were unfavorable for shooting. A light shifting breeze hampered sighting and the heat caused the target to go hazy. Craftsman M. S. Kent, H.Q. B.C. Area, Vancouver, continued to dominate the meet. He posted a perfect score of 35 to take the Woodward Trophy for Tyro entries. A Tyro is an entrant who has never won more than a $4 prize, or two $3 prizes. Tuesday Kent won the service conditions aggregate with 156 points. He also won the Pankhurst Trophy and was runner-up in the Logana match. The Woodward match was shot over a 200-yard range and ran concurrently with the Westminster match. Runner-up in the vent was W.O. C. A. McKay, who made a score of 34. The Westminster match is a two-range event, shot from the 200 and 500-yard marks. Seven rounds are fired at each range. The match was won by Sgt. J. W. Lightburn, Seaforth Highlanders, Vancouver, who posted a score of 69, only one point off a perfect score. Runner-up for the match was Maj. L. C. Willoughby, last year's Grand Aggregate winner. Craftsman Kent, after posting a perfect score on the 200-yard range, which won him the Woodward Trophy, dropped to 31 on the 500-yard range, for an overall score of 66. Two more matches, the Galletly and British Consols No. 1 are being shot off this afternoon.

Point Of Law May Win Case For 2 Accused

Two accused tried in County Court today on a charge of breaking and entering and theft may win their case on a point of law.

The accused, Allen Watson and William R. Cochrane, were charged with breaking into the warehouse of Vancouver Barge Transportation Ltd., 1102 Wharf Street, and stealing eight bales of coffee on May 9.

After the Crown had concluded its case, Watson and Cochrane, who were not represented by counsel, pointed out to Judge H. H. Shandley that, while the Crown might have shown they were in possession of the coffee, there was no evidence to show they broke into the warehouse.

"That is quite right," said the judge, addressing Crown counsel George Gregory. "What have you got to say about that?" Mr. Gregory asked for an adjournment to consider the case.

"There is no doubt they were in possession of the coffee," said the judge. "But there isn't any evidence to show they stole the goods."

He adjourned the case.

Accident took place at Cook and Fort Streets. No one was hurt. Walter's local address is listed as 910 Dunn Avenue, Saanich.

Man, Horse Obey Rules

Most unusual scene on the busy downtown city streets this morning was a man leading a big work horse and obeying the traffic rules. The man was Mike McDonald, veteran blacksmith. On reaching Cormorant Street on Douglas Street, Mr. McDonald was taking no chances on the horse and himself becoming snarled in a traffic accident. He gave the proper hand signal to indicate a left-hand turn.

Carpenters Mum On Results Of Night Meeting

Members of Local 1598, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, met for almost two hours Tuesday night to consider the conciliation board report, providing them with an eight-cent-an-hour wage increase. The union's negotiating committee entered the meeting with a recommendation that the report be rejected.

As union officials refused after the meeting to say what had happened, it was believed the union membership either refused to follow the committee's recommendation or that the vote was so badly split no decision was made one way or the other. Asked about what went on at the meeting, one high official said: "We are all sworn to secrecy."

Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt To Get Increase In New Payments

Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb announced today that within the next few days he will be distributing $3,116,413 to B.C. municipalities as their share of sales tax revenue.

THE CITY OF VANCOUVER benefits most from the sales tax. With the new payment set for $2,074,117, this city will have received a total of $3,290,272 for the year. Its share of the December allotment was $1,216,155.

Mr. Anscomb, in announcing the new distribution, said it would be difficult to over-emphasize the value of this tax assistance to municipal governments.

Without such assistance, he said, the burden of taxation on real property within municipalities would be very much larger. He illustrated this by showing the effect of the distribution upon property held by a business with a taxed assessment of $10,000, and a householder with a taxed assessment of $3,000.

In Victoria, he observed, where the assessed values taxed amount to $47,440,239, the $30,852 being paid the city from sales tax revenue was equal to 11.2 mills and meant an annual saving to the businessman of $112, and to the householder of $34.

Oak Bay will receive $66,958 in the new payoff. Added to the $39,261 this municipality received last December, Oak Bay's total for the year comes to $106,219.

Esquimalt will get $29,654 to add to the $17,388 it received in December so that its total for the year will be $47,042.

Man's Body Reported Floating Off Island

Strawberries And Melons
Climb Down Price Ladder

By PENNY SAVER

Baskets brimming over with large red strawberries flirted with every customer this morning as they stopped to look twice at a sign which read "two baskets of strawberries, 49 cents!" How about that? Eye-catchers, too, were the honeydew melons being wrapped up for 23 cents each.

Rosy-cheeked peaches, the first of crop to hit the city, are priced at 3 for 21 pennies and begonia, that's nary so bad, consider!

If you're going to get to gitten apricots, you've got about a week more to do it in. They were down to $2.35 a box this morning or by the pound, 21 cents. . . Santa Rosa plums, real tempters, my dear, tipping the scale at 1 pound, 27 cents. . . gooseberries, sitting still at 29 cents the pound.

Noticed seedless grapes down to 35 cents a pound late last week but they were back in the 39 cent groove this morning. One store had packaged the grapes, loose and not on the vine, for 27 cents, but I couldn't find them this morning. . . Mexican oranges, tasty and juicy, a dozen for 49 cents. . . little juice oranges, 27 cents a dozen. . . watermelon, 8 pennies per pound. . . Bing cherries, 1.00 a pound, but they're temptingly good at 60 cents a pound.

Corn took a bit of a leap in the right direction and simmered down to 26 cents a pound. . . Danish squash has made its debut at 28 cents per pound and the little Zucchini squash two pennies less. . . local spring cabbage, tender and fresh, a pound for 8 cents. . . green beans, 35 cents a pound. . . carrots, 2 bunches (about four large carrots in each bunch) for 23 cents.

Egg plants, they're down one penny this week, at 18 cents a pound. . . tomatoes turned up their noses and put their 41 cents a pound sign in full view while the smaller ones sell for 32 cents the pound and the teeny weeny ones, 19 cents a pound.

. . . green peas, 21 cents a pound or 2 pounds for 49 cents. . . lettuce, and they're large firm heads, 10 cents each. . . beets, four in a bunch, 10 cents. . . cucumbers, 15 cents each. . . cauliflower, 17 cents a pound. . . new potatoes, 5 pounds for 27 cents, and spinach, 2 pounds for 21 cents.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

All children, at some time, show signs of timidity. The tiny baby may not object to being picked up and fondled by strangers, but the child of 9 to 12 months will cling to the mother and cry wildly at their approach.

Some children show fear of going to strange homes or even of passing strangers on the street. Perhaps, because they have not been prepared in advance.

If the visit is to strangers tell the child how to act and what to say. If it is to the doctor or dentist give him an advance lecture on what he is to expect, how the office will look, what the doctor and assistant will do. Then he won't go into hysterics because of fear at their approach.

Social timidity arises because children are seldom ready to meet the demands made upon them. They hear so much talk of how children should speak politely, or act mannerly, or eat their food tidily though these words are just a group of adverbs which do not have much meaning for them. They do not know what it means to be "polite," or even "mannerly." If there is to be any change in their manners or attitudes it were well that the parent were more explicit and concrete and told them exactly what words to use and exactly how to behave.

Our leaflet No. 46 "Good Manners," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

B 4241Nursing Sister Joan Aitkin Returns
After Second Tour In Central Africa

Home from central Africa on a well-earned vacation is Miss Joan Aitkin, State Registered Nurse.

She arrived aboard the Aorangi to spend the next three months with her mother, Mrs. M. H. Aitkin, Maddock Avenue.

The capable young woman, tall and with closely curled dark hair, has held the responsible position as nursing sister in charge of a 75-bed hospital in Nyasaland, a British protectorate in central Africa, for the past three years.

A graduate of Victoria High School, Miss Aitkin left the city in 1937 to attend the coronation rites in England, and stayed to take her nurses' training.

She spent seven years in London Hospital and then took a year of special training at Edinburgh Royal Infirmary. Her next step was a post as charge nurse at Radcliffe Infirmary, Oxford, where she was head of the children's ward.

A desire to travel and continue her nursing profession in foreign fields led the competent young woman to join the colonial nursing service, and in 1943 she began her first tour—a period of three years—in South Africa.

She returned to Victoria in 1947 for a visit with her mother. Then followed a second tour in Africa which she has just completed.

SPEAKS DIALECT

Her interesting work calls for a knowledge of the native dialect, Chinyanja.

"Nurses are required to pass an oral examination," she explains and tells you: "It doesn't take long to pick up enough of the dialect to communicate with the people, and then, too, many of them speak a little English."

"I don't speak Chinyanja fluently by any means," she laughs. "In fact, I understand it much better than I talk it."

Her first year in Africa brought Miss Aitkin a touch of homesickness for her family and friends, and her home town. "But now I've made many friends and on off-duty hours find much to do—motor tours (she has her own car), golfing, tennis and riding."

Miss Aitkin recently started another hobby. "I've been taking moving pictures," she states and proudly displays

A member of the Colonial Nursing Service, Miss Joan Aitkin is one of a family of nurses. Her mother, Mrs. M. H. Aitkin, who trained in England, is corps nursing officer with St. John Ambulance. A sister in Seattle, Mrs. Egil Johnson, the former Kathleen Aitkin, saw service in France, Belgium and Germany, as a British army nursing sister.

plays her new possession, a neat camera, and tells of its accompanying equipment and projector.

She also describes a number of scenes she filmed on her homeward journey by plane to Australia where she spent three weeks, and then the ocean voyage home.

"There is a lot to learn about cameras and films," she reflects, and is interrupted by an amused chuckle from her mother, who interjects:

"Yes, there certainly is. The last film Joan ran off showed a kitten running upside down along the path."

With a quick change of topic, the nursing sister tells you: "It's good to be home again and wonderful to settle down for a while after living out of a suitcase for so long."

But even as she contemplates her next three months of relaxation, she can't quite disguise the enthusiastic tone of her voice or conceal the expectant gleam in her direct blue eyes as she concludes: "I'll be sailing for England early in October, and then I'll be headed for Africa and my third tour."

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Mrs. Walter Luney returned to her Uplands Road home earlier this week following a visit on the mainland with her sister, Mrs. W. B. Shakespeare, Vancouver, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Neil McNeill, West Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. Baring-Gould with their children, Marian, Michael and Lally, who have been visiting in Victoria for some time, left for their home in Santa Barbara on Tuesday. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. Russell Ker, Rockland Avenue, prior to leaving the city.

A miscellaneous shower was held recently at the home of Mrs. R. Leeman, 2121 Douglas Street, in honor of Miss Sally Jacobson who will be married June 30. The guest of honor and Mrs. M. A. Stewart, mother of the groom-elect, were presented with corsage bouquets.

In honor of Miss Joyce Simmons, whose marriage takes place this week, a surprise shower was held at the home of Miss Helena Hunkin, 522 Trutch Street, recently. Corsage bouquets of roses and delphiniums were presented to the honor guest and the groom-elect's mother. A Kenwood blanket was presented to Miss Simmons from the guests. Others present were Mesdames F. Brown, R. B. Curran, S. Rynskid, A. T. Hunkin, Misses Pat Meagher, Janice Olson, June Taylor, June Henry, Very Curtis, Lindy Hendabee, Madeline Marks, Georgina Whan, Wendy Porritt, Donna Munro and Norma Dickie.

Evelyn Lawson, George Dey Married In Duncan Church

Baskets of iris and columbines arranged on either side of the altar in Duncan United Church, created a charming setting for the marriage June 15 of Evelyn Lorraine Lawson, daughter of Mrs. Edna Lawson, Duncan, to George Alexander Dey, Vancouver, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Dey, Savona, B.C.

Rev. F. H. Golightly officiated. The bride, escorted by George Whitaker, wore traditional satin, styled on princess lines and yoked in fine lace, trimmed with seed pearls. A lace-trimmed bodice completed with lily point sleeves, flared in a graceful skirt and train. A coronet of seed pearls and orange blossoms held her fingertip veil and the bride carried a shower bouquet of red rosebuds, carnations, lily of the valley and white sweet peas. She wore a double strand pearl necklace.

Mrs. S. Whitaker, Duncan, matron of honor for her sister, was gowned in pink taffeta, and bridesmaid, Miss Frances Bartlett, Victoria, was in blue taffeta. They had matching headresses of flowers and carried Colonial bouquets of carnations, sweet peas and pinks in their lace-trimmed hands.

Donald McCall stood with the groom as best man, and Robert Lawson, brother of the bride, with Bill Brown, ushered guests to their seats.

Allan Vance sang "Because," while C. A. Howard presided at the organ.

A reception was held at The Alderlea where Mrs. Lawson assisted the newlyweds in receiving guests. A telegram was received from the groom's parents, and the couple cut a three-tier cake. Val Kyle proposed the toast.

Following a honeymoon in Victoria the couple left for Vancouver to make their home.

For travel the bride wore a navy blue tailored suit, white and blue accessories and gardenias in corsage.

FUR CAPELET
SEASON'S PET

NEW YORK (CP)—Furs being shown for cool summer days or evenings put much emphasis on the little jacket or capelet.

From extremely brief, little below the armpit, to 26-inch length, it may flare jauntily or fall straight. Cape-like jackets are caught at the sides to form sleeves. The newest have accents of velvet or braid on collar, cuffs or pockets.

One novel design is a cardigan of white Russian broadtail with knitted banding, lined with black chiffon.

A short-sleeved bolero of black Russian broadtail has a collar of white ermine, tied with a black velvet cord. Favored summer furs include broadtail in navy, white and black.

Recipes For Light Meals

spoon salt. Combine macaroni, crumbs, pimiento, green pepper and beaten egg yolks. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Pour into greased casserole and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes. Serves 3-4.

DIX

Dear Miss Dix: My son and his wife have lived with me ever since their marriage several years ago. He is my only child, all I have in the world, and I cannot bear the thought of his leaving me. He always comes to me with his difficulties in business matters and tells me that I come first in his life. His wife is not as appreciative as she might be and is not always in the best of humor. Now don't you think I am doing right by keeping my son with me as long as I can?

MOTHER.

Answer: No. I think that you are doing a very great wrong, not only to your son's wife, but to your son himself.

You are ruining his life, because you are wrecking his marriage. You are separating him from his wife, because you are coming between them. And even if the marriage doesn't end in divorce—as it probably will—you will have made it one of those accursed husks of marriage that are nothing but an endurance test.

So if you have for your son that love that makes you put his happiness above your own, you will not want to be first with him. You will abdicate the throne in favor of his wife, and you will send them off to live by themselves so that they will have to depend on each other and have a chance to grow together.

First Victoria — To end the season, Brownies of First Victoria Pack spent an afternoon in the park, and ended up with tea and games in their Brown Owl's garden. Seven Brownies, Pat Ross, Hazel Sweeting, Sharon Armstrong, Jean Hammond, Wendy Burbridge, Mary Gower, and Peggy Carl who recently passed the Brownie first-class test were presented with their Golden Hand badges at a special ceremony. Later they will fly up to guides. Brownie meetings will be resumed in September.

Venezuela, U.K. May Buy Canadian Butter, Apples

OTTAWA (BUP)—The government laid plans today for sales of apples and iron ore to Britain and butter to Venezuela.

Trade Minister C. D. Howe is expected to announce details of the new trade deals within a few days.

He told the House of Commons Monday night that the trade department had hopes of selling 1,000,000 tons of iron ore to Britain during the next two years. Negotiations with British officials should be concluded by the week-end, Howe said. Indications were "quite hopeful" for the sale of apples to the United Kingdom.

The minister said Canada also hoped to sell more butter to Venezuela and promised a statement detailing the prospects of increased Canadian trade with the British West Indies.

Howe made the statements during Commons debate on the trade department's $47,000,000 budget for the current fiscal year.

MURDER LIQUIDATED

by Julius Long

THE STORY: Ben Corbett, special investigator of State Attorney-General Keever, has received a $1,000 bill in the mail each day for four days. If he should tell Keever, he is afraid that political opportunism might crucify him. He thinks it is best to get things under control.

CHAPTER TWO

I went to my car and drove downtown to the State House, thinking about that call for me that had come to my apartment house that morning. It couldn't be the donor of the $1,000, for that person knew too much about me to call when I wasn't at home.

I parked and went into the Annex which housed State Attorney-General Keever's offices.

They were deserted, for everybody was out to lunch. I went to my own private cubbyhole, propped my feet on my desk, leaned back and lighted a cigarette and tried to think out the predicament in which I found myself. I felt that I would do better on an empty stomach, so I was passing up my lunch.

TAKES BIG CHANCE

It was taking an awful chance, carrying those bills on me. They were unmarked, but whatever bank had issued them would have their numbers. If somebody wanted to frame me $4,000 worth, all he would have to do now would be to send in the city clerk or even have Keever nail me with his gang of investigators.

I was the titular chief of those investigators, who numbered six, and who had been recruited from the tall-bush country in the placation of small-town political leaders who were satisfied with getting brothers-in-law on Keever's payroll. They spent most of their time hunting the harts they had left in restaurants, and Keever was too shrewd to use them on anything involving the intelligence of a high-grade moron.

The only person in the office who took them seriously was Dr. Curtis T. Durbin, a former professor of criminology in some midwest college off the main cowpaths. Dr. Durbin's title was State Criminologist, and his main function was to travel up and down the state lecturing to the businessmen's clubs and ladies of the auxiliaries. Dr. Durbin was popular with Keever's Keystone Cops, for he usually took several or all of them, along with him, to carry his toothbrush.

There were plenty of capable men on the staff of lawyers hired as Keever's assistants. They numbered 35, but their main job was to dig law and prepare opinions which Keever signed sometimes without even reading. These opinions were for the guidance of district attorneys and other state officials. They were duly bound in impressive volumes and issued at the expense of the taxpayers at the rate of three a year. The ordeal of preparing these opinions was so heavy that few lawyers stayed on the payroll after they could find a decent job in a law office.

CARRIES 45

There were some exceptions, key men who sought to use the position of a higher-ranking assistant as a stepping stone to the office of attorney-general himself. And then there was Preston Shelton, a youngster who had entered Keever's employ after separation from the army and who had stayed on because of extra-mural assignments. These assignments were with me and at my own request, for Shelton was as good with a 45 as with the law books, as he had proved by blasting eight Japs in a single session.

Shelton was the only man in the office that I could trust. I made up my mind to tell him my story as soon as he came back from lunch. This caused me the bitter reflection that Shelton was probably at the very moment lunching with Kay Kennedy, Keever's secretary and the office queen. Shelton and I had the same idea about her, but that did not interfere with our friendship.

Outside the heavy main door thudded shut. I got up, thinking it might be Shelton, the only man on the staff who ever showed up ahead of time. I opened the door and found Keever just outside.

"I was just coming to see you, Ben. I noticed your car in the lot and figured you would be here."

Somehow, I stepped back to permit Keever to enter. To my knowledge it was the first time he had ever graced my cubbyhole with his presence. The mountain truly was come to Mahomet. I took a hurried look around, saw the usual disarray of magazines and old newspapers, and wondered if Keever would comment. He was usually eager to take some dig at me, no matter how petty.

But this time Keever seemed preoccupied. He sat down in one of my guest chairs and stared across my cluttered desk.

PHONE CALL

"Ben, I'm worried. For a long time I've thought everything was going too smoothly. This morning I got a phone call that convinced me that the road ahead will be rough."

I eyed Keever. He did look worried. The fine lines around his eyes were deeper than usual, and his brow was furrowed. He kept playing with his fine-line mustache. It seemed to me that the distinguishing grey hair at his temples was a little greyer, but that was probably my imagination.

"Yes, boss?"

"This call was anonymous, of course, but I still think it means something." The girl said—Keever eyed me quizzically. "You know something, Ben?" He eyed me with puzzlement.

"No. Go on."

"The girl said she had no concern in the matter whatever, but she thought I ought to know that somebody in my office, one of my trusted men, was accepting a large bribe. I asked her who it was, and she wouldn't tell me. Why are you looking that way, Ben?"

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW

Mr. Belvedere Tries Hand At Cowboy And Angel Roles

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—His many fans may be surprised to know that Mr. Belvedere is at present engaged in portraying an angel and a cowboy.

Mr. Belvedere, to whom nothing is impossible, is Clifton Webb, of course.

"In films there is a tendency for an actor to be identified with the role he plays," commented Webb. "I revolt against this."

"I realized I was being typed as Belvedere. That is the reason why I played the father of 12 in 'Cheaper by the Dozen.' And that is the reason for this present picture."

"Magnificent"

He was referring to "For Heaven's Sake," which is a drastic change of pace from the sharp-tongued Belvedere. He plays an angel who comes down to earth to aid a theatrical couple in having a child.

"My friends think it's riotous that I am playing an angel," he snorted. "Magnificent!"

In one sequence he takes the form of a cowboy and he made extensive preparations for the portrayal.

Webb said he has warned his friend Garry Cooper to watch his laurels, Webb having perfected the Cooper-like "Yup." Can he roll a cigarette?

Danish Violinist To Use 'Bach Bow' At Festival

For First Time In 200 Years Music Will Be Properly Played, Says Telmanyi

By WILLIAM BOSS

EDINBURGH (CP)—A European concert artist who maintains that for 200 years Bach hasn't been getting a square deal says the composer will receive one at Edinburgh this summer.

He's Danish violinist Emil Telmanyi, a Bach specialist, scheduled to play in the Freemasons' Hall Aug. 22 during the forthcoming Fourth Edinburgh International Festival of Music and Drama.

Telmanyi says that with their current equipment violinists are incapable of producing the music Bach wrote. Their bows aren't right.

Today's bow, he says, is designed for playing one note at a time, vibrating only one—at the most two—of the violin's strings.

But Bach intended the music of his solo violin sonatas and partitas to be played by musicians sounding as many as all four strings at once.

They could do it, Telmanyi asserts, indicating contemporary prints and portraits in proof. They show the old-type bow as "curved" and from its period it has been referred to familiarly as "baroque."

Virtuosity and taste in the intervening years led to development of the present bow 100 years ago, about the time Bach's works were brought to light again. "Unplayable," they were arranged for contemporary instruments by Ferdinand David.

Says Telmanyi: "Instead of elucidating the texture of the melodic polyphony, sustaining the harmonies (chords), the modern bow necessitated broken, or vehement shortly-struck chords, which tore the melodic progress to pieces."

"Thus the listener could not understand what was going on and was constantly shocked by brutal interruptions or confused by the arpeggiated chords. But the world had more or less to accept the distorted musical reproduction because the right type of bow no longer existed."

Collaboration with Danish violin-maker Arne Hjorth has produced a bow Telmanyi describes as "convex" on the baroque style, but combining the best lightening features of the present one.

"This bow is called the 'Bach Bow,' because the solo sonatas and partitas of Bach caused its creation."

Concert-goers now will be able to hear these compositions as Bach intended, he says, and the appeal of the master, the 200th anniversary of whose death is being observed this year, will be wider.

Cat In Hospital Brings Up Puppies

HAMPTON, Middlesex, Eng. (CP)—Penny, a four-year-old black cat, brings up lots of puppies.

At the moment Penny is mothering four kittens of her own two retriever pups whose mother is too weak to suckle them.

Penny loves pups. Since she first came to hospital to be destroyed she has mothered three Pekinese who were Caesarian, two Alsatians whose mother died, two French poodles and others.

Finds Ancient Jugs

ST. ALBANS, Eng. (CP)—Eight-year-old Peter Rolfe listened carefully when his teacher gave a lesson on ancient relics. Later in a nearby field he unearthed cooking pots and jugs 700 years old.

Discovered Initials

SOUTHWOLD, Suffolk, Eng. (CP)—A carpenter here regarded a piece of wood with no particular interest until he noticed his grandfather's initial on it.

Denies Accusations

Career diplomat John S. Service testifies before the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee, swearing firmly under oath that disloyalty charges made against him by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy are "false."

Auto Power Steering Soon

DETROIT (AP)—Power steering for passenger automobiles may sound a bit fantastic, but it's on the way.

Car makers of the U.S. aren't ready to admit it, but experiments with a mechanical aid for steering passenger cars already are well advanced.

It will be expensive when it first appears. It probably will cost as much as an automatic transmission. For that reason it undoubtedly will be introduced first on higher priced vehicles where an "extra" or two aren't so difficult to sell.

Power steering already is used on some earth-moving giants of the motor vehicle family that have huge tires.

Road Caved In

LONDON (CP)—No bus was more surprised than one that suddenly found its head buried like an ostrich in three feet of hole. Fortunately, the bus was empty when the road caved in.

Sometimes It Helps To Be Short, Tubby

LONDON (CP)—Giving evidence against a motorist accused of reckless driving, a police doctor expressed the opinion that short, round tubby men can keep their equilibrium better than tall, thin men.

The magistrate: "Why?" "Because," said the doctor, "the short man's head is nearest his feet."

Can you name the 10 largest islands of the world?

First on the list is Greenland (since Australia is a continent). Second is New Guinea and third is Borneo. Then come Baffin Land, Madagascar, Sumatra, Great Britain, Honshu (or Hondo), Ellesmere and Celebes. It is the sixth island on that list—Sumatra—that I have chosen as a topic for today and tomorrow. This big island is near Java and is one of the Dutch East Indies. It is larger than the state of California, both in area and in population.

If you visited Sumatra, you would find yourself in an interesting place, but you would need to watch your step when you went into the jungles! This big island is the home of many wild animals, some of them "ferocious." There are pig-tailed apes and orangutans in the trees, and on the ground are bears, wild boars, tigers and wild dogs. Crawling about are serpents, and in the darkness gigantic bats flap their wings.

Remember that I am speaking of the jungles of Sumatra. "Civilized" parts are safe enough to visit, and the wilder sections may be braved if you have good guides (and enough guns) in the party.

Thick forests cover the greater part of Java. These forests run into one another, and the claim has been made that a monkey could travel clear across the island by swinging from branch to branch, and need never touch the ground!

Pine trees grow in Sumatra, right along the line of the equator! This is the only large island of the East Indies which has pine trees.

Other trees include the ebony, sandalwood, ironwood and camphorwood. Here and there are oaks and chestnuts, and palm trees in many sections.

It seems strange that such trees as oaks can get along on an island which is cut by the equator. Yet they grow well enough along the lower slopes of mountains. The mountains of Sumatra rise to heights of more than two miles.

The largest lake in South America is Lake Titicaca in Peru, 12,600 feet above sea level.

Jato Speeds Up R.C.A.F. Take-Off

First R.C.A.F. plane fitted with Jato (jet-assisted take-off) motors, Dakota leaps off runway at Edmonton airport after run of only 1,000 feet instead of usual 3,000. Smoke is from fast-burning chemicals in bottle which emit gases like skyrocket. Plane is also fitted with combination ski-wheel gear so it can land when necessary on mercy flights to Far North.

London Times Owner J. J. Astor Suggested As Gov.-General

LONDON (Reuter).—The editor of the Yorkshire Post, W. L. Andrews, today put forward the name of Col. John J. Astor, president of the Empire Press Union, in a list of possible successors to Governor-General Viscount Alexander of Canada.

In an article published in the Post, Andrews, who is at the conference now being held in Canada, said:

"Col. the Hon. John J. Astor, chairman of the Times (of London) and president of the Imperial Press conference has made so outstanding an impression here that several influential Canadians have told me they wish he would be the next Governor-General."

Plan Talks On Commonwealth Korea Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's high commissioner in London will meet with other Commonwealth representatives Thursday in a conference termed by a government official as a "frank discussion of Commonwealth policy in Korea."

The official indicated there is some divergence of views among commonwealth members as to the attitude to be taken in the South Korean conflict, ignited by the Soviet-backed invasion by Northern Korean troops and given wide international emphasis by the entry of the United States on the side of the badly-hit defending forces.

This conference in London," said the official, "will be like a meeting of the family. We will clear the air of any differences among the commonwealth members and try to bring about a common policy on Korea."

He indicated that one reason the conference is being called is the fact that India abstained from voting in Tuesday's meeting of the United Nations Security Council which called on U.N. members to back up a cease-fire order in South Korea with military force.

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec's padlock law, first drafted in 1937 and known in the law books as "An Act to Protect the Province Against Communistic Propaganda," was upheld today by the Superior Court. The act was attacked by a property owner.

Mr. Justice F. T. Collins, giving the judgment, said the padlock law is a legally constituted enactment and adopted within the legislating powers of the Quebec Legislature as set up by the British North America Act.

SEATTLE (BUP)—The 11-day strike of A.F.L. bakery workers ended today with the union accepting a 9-cent hourly wage increase.

Federal mediator John C. Tamm announced the settlement after a 14-hour, night-long negotiating session. He said all other union demands, including a shorter work week, had been rejected.

Local 9 Bakery and Confectionery Workers, walked out June 18 when the bakery operators refused to grant them a 30-hour, five-day work week. About 3,000 bakery workers were idled by the strike.

The families forced by flood waters the Pecos Valley began to return as the river continued to recede. The mission had dropped to 21.19 feet, continue until the river is below expected later this week. The river rose slightly Tuesday at Revel, drop during the last 24 hours. It continued to recede at Trail, to 40.37, to end the flood threat.

The recorded in the Kootenay River day was 14.9 feet.

Red Invasion Condemned By Nations' Spokesmen

At a special session of the U.N. Security Council at Lake Success, N.Y., hands of delegates from nine countries vote for resolution condemning the invasion of South Korea by Communist North Korean forces and calling for council ac-

PARIS (AP)—Former Premier Henri Queuille agreed tonight to make a second try at forming a new French cabinet. He gave up his first attempt Tuesday. Queuille is a Radical Socialist.

Earlier in the day former Premier Georges Bidault, whose government fell last Saturday, had been persuaded by President Vincent Auriol to attempt once more to line up a coalition.

Previously he had expressed the opinion he could not settle the wrangling of the factions.

However, he went to work again and spent some hours today after Radicalist leader Rene Mayer had turned down an opportunity to become prime minister. He spent some hours in conference and then informed the President he was abandoning the effort.

Other dispatches told of anxiety voiced in various quarters that the Republic was slow to form a stable government while the crisis in Korea presented the democracies with grave problems.

EDMONTON (CP) — The Attorney-General's department said today it will appeal the Alberta Supreme Court sentences of two men convicted recently of the "torture robbery" of an elderly farmer.

It is one of the first actions of its kind in Alberta in many years. H. J. Wilson, deputy attorney-general, said the appeal probably will be heard in the fall.

Mr. Justice C. C. McLaurin sentenced Henry Smichura of Edmonton and John Stadyk of Nestow, Alta., to six months in jail apiece after they had been convicted of robbery with violence. Both pleaded guilty.

Court was told the pair used a saw to cut the leg of Ewesiv Wyrlow to make him reveal the hiding-place of his money. The men testified they had been drinking.

EDMONTON (BUP)—Two U. S. paddlers with the Arctic outposts of Aklavik as their objective, today set Aug. 20 as the date for the end of their canoe trip down the Mackenzie River system.

The trip started at Saginaw Mich., April 23, but the canoeists brought their equipment here by train after battling rough water on the Great Lakes and connecting rivers as far as Port Franco Ontario.

W. Emerson Scott, 40, and R. Driessen, 20, said they planned to refloat their 19-foot aluminum craft, fitted with a 5-h.p. motor at Waterways, Alta.

They carried 950 pounds of supplies and equipment.

Plane At First From

EDMONTON (BUP)—A North west Airlines passenger plane made a scheduled half-hour stop at Edmonton today on the first flight from Tokyo to the United States since the Korean crisis broke out.

There were no evacuees from South Korea aboard the aircraft but a member of the U.S. State Department, returning to Washington.

WASHINGTON (BUP)—President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson said today the Korean war poses a serious situation but advised the people of the U.S. to keep calm.

Mr. Truman told the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States in an off-the-cuff speech the only reason he had ordered U.S. air and sea forces into the Korean fighting was "the hope that we would finally arrive at peace."

"We face a serious situation," he said.

Acheson told a news conference that the Communist invasion of South Korea is a test. If there ever was one, of whether the United Nations will survive. Apparently referring to fears that the Korean crisis might lead to world war, Acheson said this is no time for speculation or "imagining possibilities which are remote."

"It is a time," he said, "for very steady and sober talk and action."

Although officials didn't say so but loud, it seemed to be recognized on every hand that nature of Russia's reaction to the United States' intervention in Korea will determine whether the conflict remains localized or spreads into world war III.

PLENTY OF ADVICE

Mr. Truman told the reserve officers that his decision to send U.S. planes and ships to help the South Koreans had been reached "on the advice of all the brain

W. Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, said after meeting with Mr. Truman: "I don't think there is going to be any blowup. . . . This is just a 'learning process'."

And Defence Secretary Louis E. Johnson said Mr. Truman's action Tuesday was a step to "pluck safety for the nation and peace for the world."

The Senate unanimously passed a one-year draft extension bill which gives Mr. Truman authority to call up the national guard and reserve, but the armed services said they do not plan now to call up drafters or reserves. The bill now goes to the White House for signature. Administration forces in the Senate also drove for a speedy vote on new arms aid spending, including funds for South Korea.

LONDON (Reuters)—England collected 218 runs for four wickets today in its second cricket test against the West Indies, but was faced with the virtually impossible task of adding nearly 400 more in the six hours played tomorrow.

The West Indies this morning raised their score to 600. The star of D. Gomez brought 211 runs, the best ever by a West Indian in partnership in England.

The official, Ralph R. Busby, who left Korea to return to Tokyo only six days before the fighting started, said the attack from North Korea was a definite surprise.

He also commented that guerrilla activity behind the lines of South Korean defenses was as pronounced as could be expected in a Red invasion.

Thomas Rossler, 45-year-old former convict suspected of murdering R.C.M.P. constable Alexandre Gamman in Montreal May 25, is shown above being brought back to the city by Montreal detectives. He was captured at Whitehall, Mont., June 17 after a far-reaching search. Rossler is manacled to Detective Capt. Romeo Longpre (left), of the city police.

MONTREAL (CP).—G. Blair Gordon, president of the Dominion Textile Co. Ltd., at the company's annual general meeting today said that unless raw cotton prices show a downward trend in the near future he does not see necessity of a price increase in cotton goods.

Any decrease in operating costs through reductions in wage rates or other manufacturing expenses is "difficult to envisage," he said, and there still is no definite indication that the cost of raw cotton will be brought down to the level of 1935. Consequently, manufacturers like Dominion Textile and later would be forced to compete with present selling prices of cotton goods.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver, medalist in the P.N.G.A., was taken to hospital for treatment of a severe nose bleed this morning.

He was scheduled to meet Hans Swinton of Vancouver in the first match of the championship flight.

After being treated at the course the 21-year-old swinger was taken to hospital for a couple of hours rest. He was granted a two-hour leave.

Mawhinney finally tied off at 12.42. There were bandages inside and outside his nose and they appeared to block his view partially.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some families forced by flood waters to evacuate undisturbed areas of the Fraser Valley began to return to their damaged homes today as the river continued to recede.

The official gauge at Mission had dropped to 21.19 feet, but patrolling of dikes will continue until the river is below the 20-foot danger level, expected later this week.

The Columbia River, which rose slightly Tuesday at Revelstoke, registered a fractional drop during the last 24 hours and stood at 17.44 feet today. It continued to recede at Trail, dropping another six inches to 40.97, to end the flood threat to the town.

A fractional drop also was recorded for the Kootenai River at Nelson where the level today was 14.3 feet.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons, in committee, today defeated a Progressive Conservative motion regarded by the government as one of non-confidence in its freight rate policy.

By a vote of 53 to 32, the committee of the whole on transportation estimates rejected a motion that would have resulted in eliminating the Board of Transport Commissioners, which regulates freight rates.

The motion was proposed June 2 by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader. It called for reducing the 1950-51 appropriation of the board from $624,900 to $100,000, charging the commissioners with incompetent performance.
